
Subject: A dangerous virus is being passed around!
Posted by excelav on Thu, 06 Sep 2007 01:59:26 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

bought out by Digi. My understanding is that Ableton is back to distributing themselves in the US and that their relationship with Digi is of mutual consent. I.e. if Digi wants M-Audio to do X they do it, while if Digi wants Ableton to do X they can ask and cajole but it's still Ableton's to take or leave.

As an aside, one of the things European software companies complain about most bitterly is the way US distribution is done. There are a lot of reasons why they complain but in pretty much every case they think they get screwed. I think a lot of them would like to go to download only if they could, but the size of the downloads are just too much still.

TCB

"LaMont" <jjdpro@gmail.com> wrote:
>
>Thad, I agree with you about Live uniqueness
