a. You can choose to farm the land, depend on no one and pay no (income) tax. In many rural areas of the country you can pay no or nominal property taxes. It is entirely possible.

This utopian freedom has bounds:

This one is the kicker though, and elucidates my periodic rants better than I do:

<http://dineshdsouza.com/books/enemy-intro.html>

Our economy is gonna bounce along the bottom for a while. This wasn't necessary. Now I hear the Democrats starting to harp on the economy and tie it ti Iraq. there is, most definitely, a connection.

<http://drsanity.blogspot.com/2007/04/selfless-narcissism.htm> I and the following excerpt is something I've been ranting about here and elsewhere for years:

The Democrats and their glorious leaders, who have become so narcissistically invested in this country's defeat as a political strategy to accumulate power and "restore American honor", that they have--wittingly or unwittingly--decided to sell their countrymen out to the very enemy they are currently fighting. They mean well, of course. They do it for those wonderful 'selfless' reasons--like "peace" and "social justice" and all. They really support the troops .

Let's just ignore the fact that they bear considerable responsibility for the ongoing violence and death of our troops as they enable and encourage the priorities of the enemy. Why should the terrorists alter their homicidal behavior? It is working! People like Nancy Pelosi are living proof of the effectiveness of their strategy.

There really is a problem. It's a problem that has been aggravated and encouraged by the left in this country.....you know, the ones who don't quite understand that they will be the first to be slaughtered once they have thrown a wrench in the gears of those who are willing to protect them. They just do not get it. The Islamists parrot the leftist American Imperialist tripe that the leftists love to hear and ascribe to this country but the Islamists do it by design, to dupe the left into helping them destroy the protectors of the culture that the left hopes to protect by trying to appease those who will not be appeased until the leftists are either dead or are kneeling toward Mecca. Once it is too late, they can then whine about how pissed off they are that there's no separation between mosque and state...right before they are separated from their heads. I recognized it years ago. So did lots of other people.....funny, I didn't hear a peep out of OBama though.

OK.....now I'm of to rape the land.

bye.I've heard two separate commentaries (one a major news agency, the other a Brit's personal rant) about how the UK is catering to the whims of Islam - they've restricted the use of the Three Little Pigs story in some schools. England is funding Islamic schools for their Muslim citizens. They are considering passing Islamic laws in some areas to appease that community (these were echoed in both, separate and independent commentaries - two completely different viewpoints seeing the same thing happen). In effect, the UK is making concessions right and left and getting nothing in return - just more demands. Forget their own history, people and culture, just give up in the face of fear of suicide bombers, sarin gas, and extremist protests.

The news agency report basically said exactly what you are DJ - the US is doing the same thing - bowing down and letting our "pacifist" leftwing veil of "peace" and "equality" and "justice" dupe us into giving up those very ideals, playing right into the hands of extremism and even terrorism. That's the paradox that's become our country. And this is just one case of how the left is ironically proposing and touting exactly the opposite of what is the fabric of our country.

>If LE came with an audio interface, it's likely 1, 2 or possibly v3. v1 is far outdated now. v2 isn't bad, but since Cubase is on v4, it might be worth upgrading.

1 - you can use multiple monitors easily - we do it all the time. You have to manually resize the main project window to stretch across both monitors (not maximize - that uses the main monitor only, as do almost all Windows apps, unfortunately). Then resize the individual arrange, mixer, etc windows as you wish within that layout. Save your workspaces (you can have up to 9 on key commands) assign them to key commands, and work away.

2 - You can easily remove unused tracks from the pool window. Unlike Paris, you can't hang yourself with file references - you can delete, bounce, etc, without worrying about losing the perfect take (if you try to erase a file from the pool, Cubase will tell you if there is a reference to it in the arrange window - if not, it's gone, if there is, you can choose).

3 - Cubase and Nuendo 4's VST3 plugins really are pretty decent. I use mostly 3rd party plugins, as I would with any DAW, but the new EQ is just as good as Paris' with imho, wasn't anything special - just a digital EQ. Chorus? The new v4 chorus is better, but I prefer UAD-1's DM-1 or other options there. Paris was a mono app, so all of it's plugins had to convert mono to stereo (working with stereo tracks was a major pain). With Cubase, just create a stereo FX channel or group, put your chorus there, and route the mono track to it - simple - mono to stereo. You can then also use it for other tracks if you want.

4 - I don't miss Paris. Nuendo (and Cubase, esp. v4) is far faster and 100x more flexible for pretty much everything. Give the manual a read and dive in a bit before passing judgement. Paris was cool for the time, but it was surpassed in many areas years ago (jails was cool, but other than that, there isn't anything I would want from it now).

Here's another big batch of free ones, most of which are pretty basic, but again, it's some more variety, at least:

Those'll get you started on some other decent plugins that you won't have to invest anything in... I have plenty of ones I've paid for, but I also use a few of the freebie ones out there, too.

ne language thing. just as i have a problem with god being suprised that adam and eve would partake of the forbidden fruit when told no no no you don't. he's god...for his sakes... guess he also didn't think of incest when i believe god was smart enough to create the laws of physics that allow certain things to happen under certain conditions and lets the chips fall where they may. to me god doesn't kill 250 people on a plane and spare one as a lesson of his devine intervention capabilities. he doesn't kill half a town yet spares a church so they have somewhere to mourn the dead.

the truely (again to me) sad thing about the differing concepts of god is how their used to validate the harm we do each other.

><http://apnews.excite.com/article/20080316/D8VEM3KG0.html>Hey folks,

A friend is looking for a laptop for audio use. Anyone have a current Dell or other laptop that is good for audio they would recommend? Looking to get XP on it, and have friendly firewire for a TC Konnekt 24D. Budget around $1k, but could go a few hundred more.

Also, how are you guys handling internal & external laptop drives? Firewire? USB? E-Sata?

Thanks!

pass judgement, make ill-informed assumptions and become a hypocrit yourself, read the context, ask questions, and attempt to actually understand other people. You just read a single word and extrapolated that into left field.

This had nothing to do with race. You might has well launched off a diatribe on the problems with meteor storms on Pluto.

And in case you were wondering, by "fabric" I meant guts to stand up for what you believe in with integrity, honor and respect, but without any pansy, pacifist whining and hiding behind labels and stereotypes.

Btw - posting like this without your real name is cowardly and destroys any credibility to your opinion, but at least it supports my argument in spades.

>Wish it were that easy, James. We would be poor stewards of the land indeed if we carelessly dismissed the evidence to date. It's not particularly prudent to ignore increasing evidence that shows possible problems.

The atmosphere and our use of it to store increasing amounts of unwanted

You keep coming up with all these goofy things about a tree being a tree and swinging a cat around... Man... that's all just foolishness. Please, read it first-THEN bring on the comments. Right now all you are doing is "babelling" about something you don't know anything about. Read the text....
It WAS all about all the Babylonians speaking Babalonian. Not a hard concept to understand. God wanted to break their power of agreement so he confused the language and no-one understood each other and the progress of the tower seeced. Why are you fighting such a simple, well known, taught to millions, established story? You are fortunate that there are

To an extent everything is about money. But that doesn't stop people from doing good, conscientious work.

You yourself require money to live. Should we therefore disbelieve everything you say?

No, I don't think so. That argument is really reaching.

> The science of man made global warming being > a major factor is bullshit, and it is not provable.

LOL. The science is hardly bullshit.

What scientists are saying is that there is a strong chance that human contributions to greenhouse gases are affecting the climate.

This is because we are dumping large and increasing amounts of greenhouse gases into the atmosphere, above and beyond current natural cycles. Gases that then stay in the atmosphere for extended periods, decades or more.

Keep in mind that greenhouse gases help regulate temperature on earth by reflecting back infrared radiation. This is a good thing for our survival but it can be overdone.

Since only a tiny fraction of the gases in the atmosphere reflect infrared radiation (nitrogen and oxygen don't), it doesn't take much of an increase in greenhouse gases to noticeably change the amount of heat directed back toward the earth.

There is strong evidence that this is what is happening now, and that our contributions are part of the problem. Based on what we know so far there is a strong chance this problem will increase over time.

Given that information, it's smart to consider the implications now.

> Has the earth heated > up a bit, yes, the earth goes through changes.

True, and true.

And evidence indicates there's a good chance we're involved in the current climate change event.

> Should we as people stop polluting, > yes.

We certainly need to be aware of the chemistry around us and how we interact with it.

The ozone situation is a good example. Scientists noticed a change in the ozone layer. A human chemical cause was discovered. Policies were changed to stop human contributions to the problem.

> Should we conserve, yes, I'm a conservative, not a liberal.

To conserve what we have we need to take into account any evidence that shows we may have a problem.

BTW climate change and conservation are not a partisan issues, in my view. At the very least, most people don't want to screw up the area where they live, no matter their politics.

> Am I buying > in to the liberal's sin tax plan their trying to convince the dummies to > start paying to save the world, NO WAY!

That's fine. But don't confuse any perceived conspiracies with ongoing climate science.

You can promote your political views without attacking climate scientists or dismissing scientific conclusions.

> I'm I buying in the this trilateralist > plan to shift more money out of the USA, no way!

That's fine. But again you can promote your political views without attacking climate scientists or dismissing scientific conclusions.

> Back in the 70's, the scientist > that started this global warming stuff, was predicting that we would be in > an ice age right now.

Who are you talking about?

> You can post all of the contrived research you, it won't change the truth.
> Choose to believe what you want, man made global warming has not been proven.

If someone is exploiting scientific data in a partisan way to push a certain point of view you happen to disagree with, then fine, argue with them.

But don't pretend the data itself doesn't exist. There is a lot of peer-reviewed research out there, and it isn't "contrived."

If the only way to "prove" your point is to continue a risky worldwide experiment until we possibly screw up the planet for future generations, then your proof is too late to be in any way useful.

It's much smarter to look at the decades of evidence we already have and make prudent risk management decisions.

No one has any right to say any of those things. Personally, I believe I am in more danger of hell than someone who lives as an honest atheist all their lives and give Jesus a chance on their deathbed.

I cannot pass judgment on anyone's eternal destiny.

The question that concerns me this Easter is answering the question of what we would see if we could take a time machine back to Jesus tomb on early Sunday morning after his death.

Would we see a bunch of guys stealing a body, or would we see a resurrected Lord and Saviour?

None of us is wired so as to not understand the ramifications of either possibility.

The last few weeks I've been learning web design, designing a couple sites for my new company. What a trip! I'm a pretty competent graphic designer with the Adobe Creative Suite stuff, but I'm using MS' new Expression Web program, which is cool, but nothing at all like designing for print.

Anyway, my mind is slightly overwhelmed most of the time, with brief moments of joy when something miraculously works like I want. There's so much new terminology to learn, and the book I bought is kind of steep (720 pages). I learned graphics by the seat of my pants. I guess I c

There's no real reason to start political threads here at all. Just post 'em in the General group to begin with, no notice needed. Anyone here who is interesting in the discussion will find them there.

Recently saw two useful rules for getting along in forums:

-Thou shalt not post something intended to offend.

-Thou shalt not be easily offended.

Words of wisdom...

Cheers,

-Jamie
