ut it was clean. It was on Katella Ave. right across from Disney and just west of the convention center. It may no longer be there, they were renovating that whole area last I heard.

Check here:

http://www.roomsaver.com/search_display.php?state=CA&city_id=30920

They have convention parking at Disney some times. I've even Parked just west on Katella just west of the convention center, where the subdivisions start. On the same side of the street. It's a little bit of a walk, but it's free;) There is also short term guest parking at the Hilton, if you want to go to the after parties for a bit.

Good luck guys. I wish I was going.

Dontcha need a pair of them and a pair of NS-10's side-by-side on the bridge?

pabHey Deeji! Read my last post. FYI, LAX is a good hour drive in good traffic from the convention center. It would cost you upwards of $5

Well, not exactly, but I followed the same process I used for all the tracks on the "Wayward" CD, and those mp3's are all fine (<http://www.sarahtonin.com/wayward%20back.htm>)

I tried converting some other files just as an experiment, and it seems this distortion only happens on tracks that have the Alesis DM5 drum module, and it seems like it might be related specifically to the DM5 hi hat hits . . . but that's crazy. I don't know. I'm still experimenting.

If you want to hear what I'm hearing, I put a couple 14 second snippets of the mp3 and the original .wav file here:

<http://www.sarahtonin.com/music/Survival%20bit.wav>

<http://www.sarahtonin.com/music/Survival%20bit%201.mp3>

Pretty ugly . . .

Anyway . . . thanks DJ, and everyone else for your help.

Tap has finally been accepted as a legitimate band.

And that's the Majesty of Rock...

pabl think it was staged for the camera. Where's the cans?

Also, if there was a little mic on the other end, I could almost see it, but a big condensor with a pop screen? Anyone would know which end to sing into, just from watching TV.

of course, you never know...
