We can pursue this further if you like, but it is very clear.

the self determinism of the individual. If you start by looking for problems you will certainly have no trouble finding them and in the end you will increase them and their power. This is one of the problems with our health system and especially mental health system: they concentrate on disease, not health and wellness.

Look, I don't want to argue religion. I respect everyone's right to believe what is real to them, but certain things I have observed I like to share because I want to help.

this is your version of the "human myth making" story.

What if Jesus was not a myth?

What if the only version that is a myth is the one we make up?

Probably made at the same factory as the Air. Hopefully the Lenovo won't

If it is as expensive and as limited as all the mini/micro/thin laptops PC manufacturers have produced over the years and now Apple is trying to do then it to will be a flop.

This is the end for me in this discussion that went far away from its origin, where I was the second in this thread, asking questions about the difference between China's invasion in Tibet or USA's invasion in Iraq, when James asked to boycott China after their behaviors in Tibet in the last. I think there must have been problems to get any answers on this since I couldn't see any;-) nd therefore the tax revenue that a gallon of gas generates is proportionately reduced. To make up for the revenue shortfall, we're going to get taxed into oblivion.....and I was even sorta' thinking about voting for a Democrat for president. The new formula for the American economy is to tax businesses more so that they will continue to go elsewhere while screwing the workers who will be losing their jobs.

Gimme some of that. Hello Erling,

You have expressed, and on quite a few occasions, the "human myth-making" view of faith, and Christianity in particular, and blamed "religion" for much evil, even including damaging the minds/psyches of the young with these "stories".

Saying these things, is not simply an opinion, it is an assertion of fact: of how things really are.

Saying "whatever works for you" is merely assenting to this view, because if there is a concrete reality to the life of Christ, if he really did what he is said to have done, then the "myth making" perspective is simply wrong, and what we think means much less than what he thinks.

So, there is a level more fundamental than our opinions, and it is the answer to whether Jesus was real and lived as Christians believed and was raised from the dead.

Everything follows from that answer.

To assert that opinion is everything, and whatever works for you is as good as whatever works for the next guy, is to assent to Christ being a myth and his resurrection a lie.

But what if the evidence says they are likely to be true?

Would it matter then what Zoroaster said? Zeus? The Spaghetti Monster?

If your experience with Christianity is with Apostolic Christians, than I totally understand your thinking. What I'm about to say is not meant to offend anybody especially you Erling. What I am about to say is fact as I know it and my opinion based on my personal experiences with Apostolic Christians that I know.

First off, there are many different versions of Christianity. Some have been twisted and perverted the teachings of Christianity over history for their own purposes. Others have mis-taught the bible due to misunderstanding or misinterpretation. And others have concocted and added to the bible, which it says in the bible not to do. Many phonies claim to be Christians that use the name of Jesus Christ to make money. Because anybody can claim to be a Christian, Christianity is not perfect. Not all Christians are the same, and may have differing beliefs. Christianity is not alone when it comes to these things, other religions also have similar problems, such as extremism.

From my experience and knowledge, the Apostolic Christians are a misguided bunch. They have many strict man made rules, such as, women can not swim with men, they co t people to think all Christians are a bunch of nuts.

The phony TV evangelist that claim to be good Christians, and then try to sell you their latest book on how to think and how to send them more money, give Christianity a bad name. It's especially bad when these hypocrites go off with prostitutes and so on. The real bad part about this is, that is what most non believers are exposed to, and end up believing that that is what Christianity is about.

It is vary unfortunate that Christians are viewed so poorly because of a few.

Now this trilateralist bureaucrat bunch of SOBs are going to try to make it a sin tax that we will all have to pay. You know once the government gets a tax passed through they will never repeal it. We will be paying it for then on! It's a scare tactic to cow the people in to believing this bunch of bullshit. There is no significant man made global warming, it's a lie to shift the wealth out of the United States while these rats and their friends get wealthy doing it.
