no seriously, its probably a logical thing to happen eventually, when noone uses paris anymore (does anyone still use paris here?), the group becomes a "political debate" group first and foremost, and with the current polical climate and deep differences in the US, no wonder that the climate is not too good then. i remember that was already the case when i left a few years ago, it was the reason why i left if i remember correctly.

still, its funny how i get a warm and fuzzy feeling just by looking at this good old web interface :-) ive moved on, but i really loved to hang out at this place.
back when we were getting all worked up about our little individualist daw and the soap opera surrounding it...aah those were the days :-)

best,
derek

(i have two daughters now) and as far as the music production stuff goes, on the one hand, the music industry has been going down in flames in germany like everywhere else - on the other hand, ive been lucky enough to have several top ten singles and LPs, so at least i was able to keep my income about steady while many studios around me had to close down.

right now im torn between hoping that it stays that way or looking for alternatives, i.e. id love to get into the music production for computer games scene, but its hard to get in there...anyway, i should not complain.

hope all is well with you too!

>Hey Mike! Thanks for responding.

I guess its' back to the internet to find a motherboard to work with Paris, because i defiantly need to upgrade. Right now I'm working on a project with 40 tracks, and if I try to play them simultaneously it will freeze with this warning "The data could not be read fast enough from disk. Use a faster drive". I have tried ajusting the Disk I/O size and the Disk Cache size and nothing changes. So If I want to listen to Sub-1 and Sub-2, I would have to pull Sub-3 from the playing field and put it in an object jail, until I can do a mixdown of either Sub-1 or Sub-2. It takes a little longer but it works. If by chance you come across a motherboard that would work let me know or if you have a solution to my problem let me know that as well.

>>It's funny - I was mostly sticking around because I've grown fond (in an internet newsgroup sort of way) of some members of this community and like to see what they're up to but lately there's actually been some interesting Paris-related content, thanks, in no small part, to Kerry Galloway's sudden re-emergence and his new interest in archiving Paris info. The Paris Wiki may or may not be too little too late for many of us but it's been a source of hope for me. I still us Paris on a day-to-day basis to make my living and I'm grateful to all of you who continue to contribute to this group.

As far as straws breaking camel's backs goes... There is a certain amount of joking around and friendly teasing that goes on here. It sometimes gets taken personally when I don't think it's intended to offend. I've been there and done that in the 'General' group. What I had hoped would be some intelligent discussion became pretty ugly and I finally had to walk away. It's too bad that stuff like that happens sometimes. None the less, I keep coming back to this group on a daily basis. Neil - I hope you change your mind and stick around.

We don't care about platforms...who gives a s###t ?

I use both, and now prefer one over the other...but I'm not bigoted about it..

Chill out and lets get on with meaningful (???) conversation on this group.
BTW, don't go Neil..

MS vs Apple stuff, I'm never totally serious. I'm sorry man. My passion for this stuff only goes as far as how cheap I can make it and still have it do what I need it to do. My post about the Lenovo box was meant in fun.

I let it go. I can take a little ribbing

Well, I think that Macs, are overblown cult objects, but now that they are somewhat competitive with PC's in price and functionality, I'm going into withdrawal because I can no longer get my self righteous fix, except by taking a trip down memory lane. :)

How else can you explain how, for years, people would

If they'd just come down on their RAM prices and I could slap that little smartass in the commercial around once or twice, I'd probably like Macs again.

;)I am once with you for this reason I have been suffered time!

friends, with both positive and negative things to serve in the writings here. So James, as a friend, so far away but so near on the net; for me, it seems you still have problems to get some more thick skinn on your thinskinnet net-body.

Statistical, when looking at the general site, it seems that you have started nearly half of all the subjects there since June 07. So my observings says me that you're the biggest "loverwriter" here;-)

Right now however I just want to ask that everybody chill out. Resist that temptation to post back your witty retort to whoever you thought was out of line. Let it sit for a bit.

What's more important to me right now than anything is getting some positive input into the group, and I think we have heard enough of the arguments for a bit. So I'll ask you all, for a couple of days at least:

(*) If it's an argument, just let it go. I don't care if your comment is arguably warranted. What's warranted more is some peace and harmony in the group.

(*) Think of something On Topic to post. New music software or plug info. An instrument you're planning to buy. Whatever.

Later today I hope to clear off some of these messy threads and we can pretend it never happened for a bit. Let's see the group become a little more of a community again. If there's one thing everybody agrees on it's that there's too much discord, so let's simply avoid it for a bit.

I'll rename the groups, and we'll look at some kind of guide to group behaviour perhaps.

Cheers,
Kim.Thanks Kim

For your interest and effort.

Ted

Have you tried using a Firewire Plugin box (LiquidMix, Duende) with Paris in XP? :)

I would give Edmund a call and see if you can catch him personally. I haven't talked to him since SSC passed, but I meant to get in touch and see if there were any opportunities at ID for trainers. Steve was doing a good bit of that before his accident, so there might be something there for you if you were interested.

SES is da bomb, I can tell you that.

>Hey Gantt,

I know someone in town here that has made a LOT of money doing this over the years with simple tools like Soundesigner, DNR and ProTools. It took him quite a while to be recognized as an "audio expert". As the person processing the files, you will be called upon to testify to your work and results. You will also be grilled by opposing council who will try to discredit you, and will have their own experts to counter your findings. It took my acquaintance several years before he was actually accepted at face value (mostly because by that time, he had already worked for many of the lawyers!). Be prepared to read books on being a professional witness (yes, they do have them) and have a lengthy list of audio engineering clients and references...

Best of luck!
