roughest day yet, God said, Thank me it's Friday. And God made the weekend.

<h2>Chapter 2</h2>

</dd>

<dt>1</dt>

<dd> Thus the heavens and the earth were finished, and all in five days, and all less than six thousand years ago; and if thou believest it not, in a sling shalt thou find thy hindermost quarters </dd>

<dt>2</dt>

<dd> Likewise God took the dust of the ground, and the slime of the Sea and the scum of the earth and formed Man therefrom; and breathed the breath of life right in his face. And he became Free to Choose. </dd>

<dt>3</dt>

<dd> And God made a Marketplace eastward of Eden, in which the man was free to play. And this was the Free Play of the Marketplace. </dd>

<dt>4</dt>

<dd> And out of the ground made the LORD God to grow four trees: the Tree of Life, and the Liberty Tree, and the Pursuit of Happiness Tree, and the Tree of the Knowledge of Sex. </dd>

<dt>5</dt>

<dd> And the LORD God commanded the man, saying, This is my Law, which is called the Law of Supply and Demand. Investeth thou in the trees of Life, Liberty, and the Pursuit of Happiness, and thou shalt make for thyself a fortune. For what fruit thou eatest not, that thou mayest sell, and with the seeds thereof expand

thy operations. </dd>

<dt>6</dt>

<dd> But the fruit of the tree of the Knowledge of Sex, thou mayest no eat; nor mayest thou invest therein, nor profit thereby nor expand its operations; for that is a mighty waste of seed. </dd>

<dt>7</dt>

<dd> And the man was exceeding glad. But he asked the LORD God: Who then shall labor in this Marketplace? For I am no management, being tall and well-formed and pale of hue? </dd>

Here's a couple of comments from my friend whose brother worked in the building. Sorry, he asked me to take out the names and organizations.

The plane was sent into the Pentagon around the same time, to what, distract people from noticing the bombs going off in the WTC? So why have the planes fly into them, if the US Govt. was going to bring them down with bombs? The first WTC bombing was from bombs, so it wouldn't have been suspicious to have bombs...so why use the planes?

I recall talking to my brother later that day and he said he wasn't a bit surprised. Another brother, XXXX, builds electronic safety equipment & has strong ties to the FDNY, their Rescue squads and knew several men lost on 9-11. There was a FDNY building collapse expert who'd investigated the Murrah building collapse in OK working the #7 site and was the one who warned the chiefs not to send anyone into #7 because it looked so bad.

Apparently my info regarding a single 40,000 gal tank up high may have been incorrect, but it is absolutely true that a lot of fuel was stored up high and the FDNY opp

see this is whats so infuriating about taking peoples word as fact, rather than looking at the evidence.

As far as I know there was a tank in the basement. Who stores fuel "up high"?

I'm not interested in any other conspiracy theories regarding WTC. All I'm saying is my EYES show me that the building came down, not due to random structural damage, but in an intentional controlled demolition. You want to know one of the reasons why the whitehouse hates Dan Rather so much, here it is:

I'm disappointed DC. I have not been enlightened. I already know almost every detail about the official explanations. didn't take it personally, really, life's to short...especially as i near the gumming my oatmeal years.

That video is worthless, showing only one side. I have seen the pic my friend was talking about and the facade damage is severe.

You should read the PM report on this. It was really good, pointing out design flaws in WTC7 that overstressed columns right where the damage was.

Do you know any structural engineers? I do, and they would never support a cover up, and their work is all peer-reviewed, and they would get hammered if they lied for the gummint.

Nothing I can do will shut the moonbat conspiracy website people up, but we do not need to be lied to by them.

I dunno... seems like a decent technical explanation. I just never believed that random damage would bring down a building in its own footprint, rather than a chunk falling off, or half the building collapsing or something like that. I know that the main towers did collapse like that because the plane ripped through the entire building, but debris causing that on a neighboring building... I'm not sure."DC" <dcicchetti@urs2.net> wrote in message

Nah, honestly I had read that PM report as well as the FEMA official report. The floor plans show that part of the building was WAY heavier fortified than the rest of the building, so smooth as silk collapse in its own footprint sounds a little far fetched.

Regarding the integrity of structural engineers, you can find disagreement there. People tend to publish the science that supports their theory.the buildings simply failed due to their structural design. being exoskeletal in nature they did not have the internal strength of the old school (empire state) construction. with no center support to speak of the floors joists fatigued from the heat and collapsed inward on the stairwells.

I'm seriously open minded about this though.. If you can find a pic showing serious damage to WTC7, I might change my mind, but so far this is all I can find.

I think that could be possible.. That is how the big towers collapsed.
Regarding WTC7, I don't really see anything that would be generating heat.
No glow.. no smoke, etc. Here's another vid.

I really appreciate everyone talking about this...I'm assuming you are referring to my post as being typical of something.
Perhaps you consider the reason for it as being a typical reaction to a typical spin.

"Pulling" Building 7

A PBS documentary about the 9/11/01 attack, America Rebuilds, features an interview with the leaseholder of the destroyed WTC complex, Larry Silverstein. In it, the elderly developer makes the following statement:

I remember getting a call from the, er, fire department commander, telling me that they were not sure they were gonna be able to contain the fire, and I said, "We've had such terrible loss of life, maybe the smartest thing to do is pull it." And they made that decision to pull and we watched the building collapse.

This statement seems to suggest that the FDNY decided to demolish the building in accordance with Silverstein's suggestion, since the phrase "pull it" in this context apparently means to demolish the building. This interpretation is supported by a statement by a Ground Zero worker in the same documentary:

... we're getting ready to pull the building six.

Building 6 was one of the badly damaged low-rise buildings in the WTC complex that had to be demolished as part of the cleanup operation.

An alternative interpretation of Silverstein's statement is that "pull it" refers to withdrawing firefighters from the building. However, according to FEMA's report there were no manual firefighting operations in Building 7, so there would not have been any firefighters to "pull".

That Silverstein would admit that officials intentionally demolished Building 7 is bizarre for a number of reasons. Silverstein Properties Inc. had already won an $861 million claim for the loss of the building in a terrorist incident. FEMA's report states that the cause of building's collapse was fires. Presumably FEMA and the insurance company would be interested in knowing if the building was instead demolished by the FDNY. Moreover, the logistics of rigging a skyscraper for demolition in the space of a few hours would be daunting to say the least, particularly given that demolition teams would have to work around fires and smoke.

A third explanation is less obvious but makes sense of the non-sequiturs in the above explanations: perhaps Silverstein's statement was calculated to confuse the issue of what actually happened to Building 7. By suggesting that it was demolished by the FDNY as a safety measure, it provides an alternative to the only logical explanation -- that it was rigged for demolition before the attack. The absurdity of the FDNY implementing a plan to "pull" Building 7 on the afternoon of 9/11/01 will escape most people, who neither grasp the technical complexity of engineering the controlled demolition of a skyscraper, nor its contradiction with FEMA's account of the collapse, nor the thorough illegality of such an operation. Thus the idea that officials decided to "pull" Building 7 after the attack serves as a distraction from the inescapable logic that the building's demolition was planned in advance of the attack, and was therefore part of an inside job to destroy the entire WTC complex. do i know you??? what cd's??? wait...i remember now...cd's...are certificates of deposits...HELL YES I STILL WANT EM'. this is sooooo cool, in fact, i'm leaving for the post office right now and wait for them...will it be a long wait??? really i need to know cuz sometimes they shoo me along if i'm there too long.

Was this the kind of guy that thought there was a JFK conspiracy?
<http://www.prisonplanet.com/021104vonbuelow.html>
"Former German Defense Minister Confirms CIA Involvement in 9/11"

Or this guy:
<http://washingtontimes.com/upi-breaking/20050613-102755-6408.r.htm>

"A former Bush team member during his first administration is now voicing serious doubts about the collapse of the World Trade Center on 9-11. Former chief economist for the Department of Labor during President George W. Bush's first term Morgan Reynolds comments that the official story about the collapse of the WTC is "bogus"

Why don't you watch the videos?

Wow.....sorry to hear that Erling. That's sad stuff. What is it with these Canadian girls? My girl was from Simcoe Ontario. We were together for over two years. Of course, when we went down to Mexico she stayed at the Canadian posada and I stayed at the American one.

I was looking at Fallujah... seems like quite a city. not too far fetched that the civilians in the "OH DUDE" movie could have been going to a bday part.

Anyway, I just heard on the news that the entire city only has 90 cops. Ouch, but making progress.yep

My comment was totally inappropriate. These 90 cops (or at least the ones who are really cops) are probably some of the bravest humans on earth.

I've heard it said before, usually by United Statesians, that these verifiable facts are non-the-less lies. I have not, however, seen anyone actually put forth proof that what I am saying is incorrect.

So, DC, for you to say that I am lying you must put for some evidence for your claim. Prove it!

If you have not tried it yet, get a script for Ultracet (Tramadol), soft as

Get an Ebay copy of Peter Egoscue book Pain Free, A Revolutionary Method for Stopping Pain. He has written half a dozen well organized books on this it relieves the physical pain, unless it's just unbearable, I think I'd Here you go,

Our Wars Over the War

Victor Davis Hanson

Ever since September 11, there has been an alternative narrative about this war embraced by the Left. In this mythology, the attack on September 11 had in some vague way something to do with American culpability.

Either we were unfairly tilting toward Israel, or had been unkind to Muslims. Perhaps, as Sen. Patty Murray intoned, we needed to match the good works of bin Laden to capture the hearts and minds of Muslim peoples.

The fable continues that the United States itself was united after the attack even during its preparations to retaliate in Afghanistan. But then George Bush took his eye off the ball. He let bin Laden escape, and worst of all, unilaterally and for oil, hegemony, Israel, or Halliburton, something in

In any case, there was no connection between al Qaeda and Saddam, and thus terrorists only arrived in Iraq after we did.

That tale goes on. The Iraqi fiasco is now a hopeless quagmire. The terrorists are paying us back for it in places like London and Madrid.

Still worse, here at home we have lost many of our civil liberties to the Patriot Act and forsaken our values at Guantanamo Bay under the pretext of war. Nancy Pelosi could not understand the continued detentions in Guantanamo since the war in Afghanistan is in her eyes completely finished.

have increased the terror threat as we saw recently in the London bombing. We have now been at war longer than

World War II. We still have no plan to defeat our enemies, and thus must set a timetable to withdraw from Iraq.

Islamic terrorism cannot be defeated militarily nor can to seeing the terrorist killing as a criminal justice matter while we give more money to the Middle East and begin

That is the dominant narrative of the Western Left and at times it finds its way into mainstream Democratic-party thinking. Yet every element of it is false.

Prior to 9/11, the United States had given an aggregate of over $50 billion to Egypt, and had allotted about the same amount of aid to Israel as to its frontline enemies. We had helped to save Muslims in Bosnia, Kosovo, Somalia, Kuwait, and Afghanistan, and received little if any thanks for bombing Christian Europeans to finish in a matter of weeks what all the crack-pot jihadists had not done by flocking to the Balkans in a decade.

Long before Afghanistan and Iraq, bin Laden declared war on America in 1998, citing the U.N. embargo of Iraq and troops in Saudi Arabia; when those were no longer issues, he did not cease, but continued his murdering. He harbored a deep-seated contempt for Western values, even though he was eaten within by uncontrolled envy and felt empowered by years of appeasement after a series of attacks on our embassies, bases, ships, and buildings, both here and abroad.

Iraqi intelligence was involved with the first World Trade Center bombing, and its operatives met on occasion with those who were involved in al Qaeda operations. Every terrorist from Abu Abbas and Abu Nidal to Abdul Yasin and Abu al-Zarqawi found Baghdad the most hospitable place in the Middle East, which explains why a plan to assassinate George Bush Sr. was hatched from such a miasma.

Neither bin Laden nor his lieutenants are poor, but like the Hamas suicide bombers, Mohammed Atta, or the murderer of Daniel Pearl they are usually middle class and educated they wanted to be part of it. The profile of the London bombers, when known, will prove the same.

The poor in South America or Africa are not murdering civilians in North America or Europe. The jihadists are not bombing Chinese for either their godless secularism or suppression of Muslim minorities. Indeed, bin Laden harbored more hatred for an America that stopped the Balkan holocaust of Muslims than for Slobodan Milosevic who started it.

There was only unity in this country between September 11 and October 6, when a large minority of Americans felt our victim status gave us for a golden moment the high ground. We forget now the furor over hitting back

Times columnists R. W. Apple and Maureen Dowd; a will not be lending expertise to anyone and the Baghdad

In fact, thousands of brave Iraqi Muslims are now in a shooting war with wahhabi jihadists who, despite their carnage, are dying in droves as they flock to Iraq.

A constitution is in place in Iraq; reform is spreading to Lebanon, the Gulf, and Egypt; and autocracies in Saudi Arabia, Libya, and Pakistan are apprehensive over a strange new American democratic zeal. Petroleum was returned to control of the Iraqi people, and the price has skyrocketed to the chagrin of American corporations.

There has been no repeat of September 11 so far. Killing jihadists abroad while arresting their sympathizers here at home has made it hard to replicate another 9/11-like attack.

The Patriot Act was far less intrusive than what Abraham Lincoln (suspension of habeas corpus), Woodrow Wilson (cf. the Espionage and Sedition Acts), or Franklin Roosevelt (forced internment) resorted to during past wars. So far America has suffered in Iraq ..006 percent of the combat dead it lost in World War II, while not facing a conventional enemy against which it might turn its traditional technological and logistical advantages.

Unlike Gulf War I and the decade-long Iraqi cold war of embargos, stand-off bombing, and no-fly-zones, the United States has a comprehensive strategy both in the war against terror and to end a decade and a half of Iraqi strife: Kill terrorists abroad, depose theocratic and autocratic regimes that have either warred with the United States or harbored terrorists, and promote democracy to take away grievances that can be manipulated and turned against us.

that it had a certain political utility in the 2002 and 2004 elections?

In a word, this version of events brings spiritual calm for millions of troubled though affluent and blessed Westerners. There are three sacraments to their postmodern thinking, besides the primordial fear that so often leads to appeasement.

Our first hindrance is moral equivalence. For the hard Left there is no absolute right and wrong since amorality is defined arbitrarily and only by those in power.

Taking back Fallujah from beheaders and terrorists is no different from bombing the London subway since civilians may die in either case. The deliberate rather than accidental targeting of noncombatants makes little difference, especially since the underdog in Fallujah is not to be judged by the same standard as the overdogs in London and New York. A half-dozen roughed up prisoners in Guantanamo are the same as the Nazi death camps or the Gulag.

since reason and conflict resolution can convince even a bin Laden to come to the table. That most evil has ended tragically and most good has resumed through

Apparently on some past day, sophisticated Westerners, in their infinite wisdom and morality, transcended age-old human nature, and as a reward were given a pass from the smelly, dirty old world of the past six millennia.

The third restraint is multiculturalism, or the idea that all social practices are of equal merit. Who are we to generalize that the regimes and fundamentalist sects of the Middle East result in economic backwardness, intolerance of religious and ethnic minorities, gender apartheid, racism, homophobia, and patriarchy? Being different from the West is never being worse.

These tenets in various forms are not merely found in the womb of the universities, but filter down into our popular culture, grade schools, and national war against stealthy enemies who proclaim constant and shifting grievances. If at times these doctrines are proven bankrupt by the evidence it matters little, because such beliefs are near religious in nature challenge.

These articles of faith apparently fill a deep psychological need for millions of Westerners, guilty over their privilege, free to do anything without constraints or repercussions, and convinced that their own culture has made them spectacularly rich and leisured only at the expense of others.

So it is not true to say that Western civilization is at war against Dark Age Islamism. Properly speaking, only about half of the West is involved, the shrinking segment that still sees human nature as unchanging and history as therefore replete with a rich heritage of tragic lessons.

This is nothing new.

The spectacular inroads of the Ottomans in the 16th century to the gates of Vienna and the shores of the vibrant economy, impressive universities, or widespread scientific dynamism and literacy, or even a technologically superior and richly equipped military. Instead, a beleaguered Europe was trisected by squabbling Protestants, Catholics, Atlantic seaports, ignored the besieged Mediterranean and Balkans and turned its attention to getting rich in the New World.

So too we are divided over two antithetical views of the blue states in intellectual and spiritual divergence, the tragic view resisting the creeping therapeutic mindset.

These interior splits largely explain why creepy killers from the Dark Ages, parasitic on the West from their weapons to communications, are still plaguing us four years after their initial surprise attack.

ourselves, that we are underlings."

I know, I know -- I don't have to read it if I don't want to.
But -- isn't this what the "general" site is for?

Way past time to take this out in the hall, people.

Here's a pedal that does it. I own one, and it KILLS. It sounds so dang good I leave it on all the time (and I never do that) and it works for everything from metal to country to jazz.

It also works terrific as the front end of a modeler or other guitar preamp for direct recording.

<http://www.barberelectronics.com/tonepress.htm>

Absolutely my favorite guitar processor of all time.

DCYou guys are right. I think both sides have been adequately represented, I think both arguments have been well-made. I think everyone has made their minds up at this point. Hostility and name-calling is creeping in to what was a pretty darn civilized discussion. It's quickly becoming pointless.

I am tracking a hard rock tune of mine and need to get back to work and this really isn't the place for this discussion. If you want to email me privately, I will discuss it further, but really, we've covered the subject, don't you think?

DC

PS, holy cow this Marshall JCM2000 sounds cool cranked up! Unfortunately, you can hear it down at the stop light when I do that... grrrr... Why can't the modelers sound like that? I hope you still follow up with the WTC7 stuff....

email me if you have to.

thanks

its kinda mono but kinda stereo.... sounds like dooky!!

i have to admit i always liked steve taylor.

i had "i want to be a clone" and "meltdown" when i was in elementary school.

meltdown was a great album if you ask me.

here is some trivia for ya.....

who is playing bass on "i want to be a clone".... you know the intro.... "da ga da ga da ga da ga dun, da ga da ga da ga da ga dun,....."

Nice!

Here is a shot I took last month while hiking up Moose Mountain in Kananaskis country, 45 minutes away from my home in Calgary. This is taken from the 8000' mark at the top of the mountain.

-----010200070203000709010405--Unfortunately name calling was there pretty much from the start, and, with unintended irony, a bit of projection. Some of it has been entertaining yet at times appalling, like getting sucked into a cheesy reality TV show, pandering talk radio or overblown pro wrestling. If this keeps up Kim's little corner of the web will start getting traffic and he'll get rich on the Google ads.

We've heard several points of view but nothing like the whole picture. A certain amount of people talking past each other, answering arguments not made, ignoring arguments made, knocking down straw men invented.
Battles of mythology, parroting of talking points, misuse or lack of data, and blind superior certainty. In short, a typical internet political discussion.

And yet a certain amount of listening, that part is always encouraging.

Cheers,
-Jamie K

Actually the topic was fine and results were never in question. The rest I already covered. Of course name calling, whether direct or indirect, is never a convincing way to support a position.

Have a good weekend. I'm off to a concert shoot for the Warped Tour tomorrow...

heh heh

I did think you made a bit of a cheap shot with your description, in all honesty...

So what are you doing on the shoot? camera op? production mixer? featured performer?

heh heh

And who made you the rater-of-discussions anyway? I do think you took a bit of a cheap shot there considering the effort we made to get along. I guess we are all learning to live with each other's idiotsyncracies. (is that a word?)

So, what are you doing on the shoot? Camera op? production mixer? featured artist? sword swallower? tattoo man?

expiring minds want to know...

You might be a bit delusional at times, but I don't think you're schizophrenic. What do you both think?

If you two want to rate a discussion and then complain when someone else does, that's OK by me. :^)

Actually, we're really talking about multiple personality disorder, commonly confused with schizophrenia (http://www.mentalhealth.com/book/p40-sc01.html#Head_5). But that dulls the joke.

Anyhoo, glad to hear you're making an effort to get along. It's good to get along. I like it when people can set aside their differences long enough to have a calm and rational discussion, with open minds and sincere attempts at personal growth, resisting the urge to put down the other person in any way. What's really cool is sticking to consideration of issues and evidence without presuming that any disagreement is automatically a sign of lunkheadedness on the part of other people.

Hearing a perspective for what it actually is and not assuming what it might mean. Sharing views, insight and information as a two way street. Leaving mental ruts behind. Taking away new knowledge. Good stuff when it happens. Takes exceptional concentration, sometimes. Can't say I always succeed.

I'm shooting interviews and concert footage tomorrow. Should be a blast.

Cheers,
-Jamie K

Beautiful Dave. When seeing this, you got me thinking on travellings I = had in some of the Norwegian moutains a teenager or two years ago. = Like these, standing on Prekestolen about 15 years ago. 3 feet behind = me, there's just about 2000 feet right down in the fjord. My 5 years = older brother took the picture.

Hope Kim have enough place on his server for all these graphical stuff = and that most of us have more speedy modems now.

-----=_NextPart_000_0032_01C58ABF.F9501990--I was seeing a DVD movie yesterday well worth to see for all of you. I think plenty of you already have seen it, but I couldn't help of thinking on our political discussions here between all my laughings and tears. I know the film was nominated for an Oscar and 2 Golden Globes when it came out and it's well worth them all in my thoughts. But I don't know if they won any at all.
"My big fat Greek wedding" is the title.

I'd be more interested in the collective horsepower of the EDS chips =

DCYes, this weekend I finally made it down to the store. After losing a day to a hangover on Saturday, on Saunday I made the concerted effort to make it down to the store. I still have a hdd upgrade planned, but stage 1 of the upgrade was the Gigabyte K8NS Ultra 939 MB, an Athlon 64 3000+ and a gig of ram.

Of course, in my haste to get running I had no interest in reinstalling Windows, but quickly found that Windows XP isn't all that forgiving if you suddenly replace a whole bucketload of it's hardware. Suffice to say a quick "repair" of XP brought the system back up, and it's all good.

Mind you I haven't actually run Paris on the thing yet. I'll get to that tonight. Point is though that the EDS cards fitted in just fine. From what I can tell I could actually put a full 5 EDS cards in this thing if I wanted. The BIOS is really nice with IRQs, and allows you to assign each PCI slot to whatever IRQ you want, and tells you what you'll be sharing with on each setting. PCI 1 & 5 share IRQs qith each other, but no other slots share far as I know, so it should be possible to simply put every EDS card on a single IRQ which isn't shared with anything else.

The only complaint I have about this board is that it doesn't seem to have an SPDIF In provided. Even though it is supposed to be on the board, the supplied connector which connects to the mobo header only has outputs. The good news is though that it has both coaxial and optical outputs. The only other complaint is that, as I imagine is often the case, the board has too much I/O for them to fit it all on the mobo, so there are of course two of those metal strips that lose you a PCI slot, and these allow you access to the "rest" of your audio plugs (including SPDIF) and in the other case the Firewire and some bonus USB2 connectors. At this stage I've only got 2 EDS cards anyhow so this isn't a problem, but if I wanted to use 5 PCI slots, SPDIF and Firewire all at once I'd have to find a workaround. This isn't an issue for me though.

I bought a cheapy "winfast" Geforce 5200FX graphics card also for good measure. This thing was nice and cheap, and I figure being a Geforce card it should play nice with the NForce mobo chipset.

Tonight I'll get my other boot working, and see if we can't get Paris to run.

I'm looking forward to getting my planned 2 x 250Gig Sata drives for the thing. That should speed it up a whole chunk more I expect. Currently the OS on this new box is living on an old 27 Gig 5200RPM Maxtor drive I bought "Back in the day" while I was over in the U.S. in 98 or whenever it was. I imagine it's a little slower than current technology. ;o)

Cheers,

Kim. My Cubase DAW is running at 333MHz (2 x gigs of PC 2700 DDR) using an AMD XP 3000 CPU. It is plugging along at between 60-75% CPU usage when playing back 48 tracks of audio with little else going on other than plugins from my 3 x UAD-1 cards. I'm not familiar enough with SX to know if this is about normal or not and I'm sure I could optimize the system a little more by turning off the LAN in the bios when I'm mixing since one of my RME's is sharing an IRQ with it, but anyway, the system seems very stable and definitely usable as a mixdown platform. I would however, like to squeeze a little more CPU headroom out of it and I'm wondering if anyone here has ever substituted an XP 3200 CPU for an XP 3000 and noticed that the gain in cycles was substantial enough to justify the expenditure (as subjective as that is). Anyway, it's a longshot, but I thought I'd ask.

Thanks,

Deej That sounds like a very friendly mobo. what bios does it use?

lameHere is a perfect example of what's wrong with the Rhetorical Right. The author of this either insane or, more probably, vastly ignorant, and unaware of it.. The worst part of all this is that this type of nonsense is passing for informed opinion in the circles of those too lazy to do their own homework. And to the detriment of the future of our world these illinformed, intellectual sloths slurp this stuff up like a dog sloshing up a bowl of beer..

Hanson, like so many rightwingers I've met, is off-the-scope crazy. The right, it seems, is populated be people who cannot see the biggest of pictures, preffering to only see what agrees with their own bizarre, USA #1, world view. Take a look at what he says below and see the problems with it.

Well, first of all, many have been pointing out that the US should not have been invading Iraq, Afghanistan and many other nations since Vietman, but more germain to the point, they've been pointing out the culpability of the US since both the Afghani war in the '80's and the Iraqi war since '89. This is not the new phenomenon that the right would have us believe.

>Either we were unfairly tilting toward Israel, or had been unkind

It's true that Israel is a US client state and, yes, the Arab who are the victims of this policy are upset about it. Unkind to Muslims? This cat's a real wanker. Kabul was a tourist destination for decades. And for a good reason: it was a thriving, beautiful city with great hospitals, quality education and was a jewel of a city. Then the US via the CIA funded people they knew were Islamic Extremists - Osama Bin Laden - to fight a war with Russia, with the stated goal of wearing them down financially. It worked. This war is one of the prime factors in the collapse of the USSR, leaving Afghanistan in ruins ever since. The same can be said of Damascus, another beautiful Arab city. And let's not forget the meddling in Iran. During the hostage crisis at the US embassy in '79, President Carter made it clear that we were all supposed to forget the misdeeds of the US, labeling them as "ancient history", but also reminding us that dwelling on America's faults only helped the enemy.

The idea here is classic, psychopathic thinking: I may have robbed you yesterday, but that doesn't give you the right to retaliate. If you think this type of thinking is appropriate you should be on the FBI list of people to watch.

> Perhaps, as Sen. Patty Murray intoned, we needed

Pointless rhetoric. Bin Laden may have not done any community service by any US standard, but he has stated in his writings that his purpose is to free the Arab people from US oppression and tyranny. So, in this regard, yes, maybe the US should capture the hearts and minds of the Muslim people by leaving them the hell alone.

>The fable continues that the United States itself was united >after the attack even during its preparations to retaliate in Correct, it is a fable. Not only was the US not united, but everyone with a mind and some human compassion was against this invasion. Afghanistan didn't bomb the US. There's even a smattering of evidence that the Israeli Mossad was involved. Iraq had nothing to do with it.

Oops....apples and oranges. Bin Laden openly stated that he would not deal with Saddam because he was heretical to Islam, having been in the pocket of the US for so many years.

So it's only natural than in a post-Saddam Iraq Al Qaeda should do it's part to rid the middle east of US invaders.

You Have lost many of the liberties that your fore-fathers fought so hard to attain from the hands of the semi-monarchastic government you've let flourish. (no? ...better read the sayings of your founding fathers...many wanted a king not a president.)

And the idea that the US can purpetrate war crimes and the like without answering to rest of the world, via the ICC, is virtually an admission of guilt, else why the need for protection from prosecution. Imagine if Hitler had this option. Or Saddam.

You aren't safer as a nation. This is one of the stated goals of the anti-US movement in the middle east: make the US as un-free and forshortened as their countries have been made by the US. You've destroyed their home and people and it's made them quite angry. How can you possibly not realize that if they don't come and get you, and they'll try, that your HSA has given your gov't powers over you that will come back to bite your ass. But wait, you're not guilty of anything (that you know of...)! Well the HSA isn't about guilt now, is it, vis-a-vis Guantanamo Bay.

True, but Blair is responsible also. Don't forget: it's easier to get to Europe than the US so, of course, they're going to target these people first. If the US were closer, they'd be in a lot more trouble.

Here's an interesting and accurate summary of this conflict from Paul Philllips of the University of Manitoba, Canada:

Kosovo is a part of Serbia/Yugoslavia, just like Vermont is a part of the United States. Serbs consider it to be the cradle of their civilization. Until early in this decade, Kosovo had a tremendous amount of autonomy, due to its large Albanian population. This autonomy was granted by the previous government of Yugoslavia--an independent socialist government with Marshall Tito as its president. When President Tito died, Milosevic was elected to the presidency and revoked the autonomous rule. At the same time, the International Monetary Fund, western banks, and the German and U.S. governments began to institute a variety of measures intended to destabilize and fragment the Yugoslav federation. These measures ranged from economic ones such as denying loans and demanding immediate repayment of outstanding debts to arming separatist (some with ties to the European fascist movement) movements in the Yugoslav republics of Croatia and Bosnia-Hercegovina. As for Kosovo, Serbia has indicated that it would grant Kosovo the autonomy it once had. However, the KLA and others now demand independence with the eventual goal of uniting with Albanians in Albania, Macedonia, and Greece and forming a Greater Albania. This is not acceptable to either the Serbs, Macedonians, or the Greeks and would probably cause this war to spread to those countries along with Turkey (who supports the idea) and perhaps the rest of Europe.

>Kuwait,

Don't forget that Bush Sr. gave Saddam the nod to go ahead and invade them, then turned table and used it as an excuse to invade Iraq. I was trading in oil back then and I remember a business associate of mine telling me that when in Washington he'd been told a tidbit about Saddam screwing Bush Sr out of 20 billion dollars that Georgie wanted back. Heresay, but non-the-less interesting.

What do you call what the US is doing to Them? As a point of clarity, the US, by illegally invading Iraq is, according to the Geneva Convention, murdering people. How do people defending their land from Foreign Invaders became murderers? Arn't they defenders of their homeland?

>He harbored

The US is pretty corrupt and it's policies are entirely one-sided. Let's not forget that these people are like Menonites compared to the average US citizen. No drugs, no liquor, incredibly harsh on crime, no promiscuity...not unlike the tenets of the Bible that the 80% of the US espouses but fails to do. USians are hypocritical/fanatical in the extreme and they don't want what they percieve as US ultra-sinnfulness polluting their nations.

So, a middle class atheist is the same as a middle class Baptist? So they're middle class and educated, many of the activists of the world are. But the idea that they covet our high-speed internet and SUV's in, well, retarded at best.

Because they are Christians, like the US, who is killing them anyway. The Islamic Jihad is an opposing system of morality. The US never went to El Salvadore and said that they were evil, and that the US war was a war on evil, a crusade, as they did in the middle east. They used religious language to make a point demeaning the very underlying premise of the Jihad. Bush + God = We are Righteous. Islam + Allah (who is Satan, right?) = You are evil and must be smote.

Just as the US cares more about bombings IN the US than in other countries. Also, you have a charter that says the state must keep out of religion. Can you imagine a headline that reads, "US Invasion to Free Christians".

Muslim is a religious word. Defending "Muslims" per se is not what Bin Laden is attempting to accomplish, but the ousting of US invaders from the countries of the middle east.

I'm not certain what the point of this, and many other of Hanson's, statements is, but it's irrelevant.

The fact is that once the doors to overthrow were opened by the US, ever faction who believed that their way is the best way stepped up to the plate. The Wahhabi are so extreme that even Bin Laden sits up and takes notice when they speak. They are Way more fundy that he is. He took US money; the Wahhabi never would.

But here's a substitution of terms look at all this. If the US were invaded and society were disrupted to the extent in is in Iraq, or not even so, do you not think the disparate, extremist factions here at home would step up? There are many well armed factions in the US who would not hesitate to attempt to claim the leadership; Arian Nation, Republicans, Democrats, all those well armed Christian movements, not to mention the militias and any other clutch of nuts with guns. It happens in every country where the gov't goes down...all the rats vie for the cheeze.

Morality is relative. There is proof of God and there is proof of the human origins of the Bible. So, this being true, then all morality comes from humans and is therefore arbitrary, regardless of your place on the US political spectrum.

Why should he come to the table? It's his table and the US isn't invited. The idea that we should, for some reason, forget all the harm the US has done over there underlies everything Hanson writes. like so many USians, such as the wealthy who are intollerant of the poor, or the Baptists who are intollerant of pretty much everything. Which brings me to an interesting point: the US is the most religiously fundamentalist extremist bunch outside of the Mullah's of Iran, and are hugely intolerant of Blacks, (no bigotry isn't dead), Atheists, Gays and Liberals. The US is the biggest bunch of bigoted wackjobs on earth. Nothing personal, it's just my observation.

While this is emphatically true of writers of the Right such as Coulter, Limbaugh and Hanson, and it's been clearly delineated point-by-point by they intellectual superiors, the same cannot be said of most of the neutralist and centerist writers.

The right never "proves" anything, it just makes up things as it goes along, forgets the fact of historic and political documents and proceeds with a string of bad logic and ad hominem that add up to nothing but blustering rantings.

I've read a great deal from both sides and, though I'm a centerist - if you need a term to grasp - I find that the left at least is interested in the truth and the facts whereas the right is mostly fiction and slag-offs. I have never seen a rightwing document that had the numbers right, the facts right or was anything but a screed, although I enjoyed it for it's Lewis Carol-esque-ness.

Guilty over privilege? I've met a lot, I mean a real lot of privileged people (my wife's family is among the upper crust of NYC, so I've met people as diverse as Noam Chomski and Donald Trump and some of the Bush family who were at our wedding), and I've never met one who felt guilty because of their privilege. Oh contraire.

See, I told you so. So, literally, it isn't the East who war against our civilization, it's the "half of the West", the violent and insane half, that is fighting against "the dark ages of islam".

And there you have it folks, the real reason for the war - the overthrow of dark-ages Islam.

The nice thing about writing from the right is that people with mental illness will invariable show their hand. There pre-disposition to crazyness can lead them to do no less.

And that's what Hanson has done.

It's an AWARD Bios. I took your advice and made sure I got AWARD. That's what I'm used to anyhow. It also has this Gigabyte "Dual Bios" thing with two copies of the BIOS, so that if you flash it or get a virus and corrupt it somehow you can just switch to the backup BIOS. :o)

I'll get Paris running tonight. She seems pretty quick though. Boot time is about 4 x quicker.

And there's something wonderful about seeing 1,048,576 come up as your ram count. :o) fresh install would really help with the new computer feeling, but most importantly rule recycled windows out as a problem should you encounter something down the road.

just messin though, I've done the same thingDeej that doesn't really seem to be worth it, but have you considered adding a hamster army spinning a bunch of wheels? Might want to put it in another room and run some cables, cuz that shit can be loud.

oh yo youre holding me a lecture about how not to jump to conclusions? heh

sorry btw that i didnt reply - was quite busy doing a film score. im still not done but while the bounce is running, let me say this about your numerous tactical scenarios:

see, the point is, you talk about potential losses, losing parts of western germany and what not. im sure you will agree that from a german point of view, the stakes were even much higher, cause for a german it was the own country that would fall.

with that in mind, it was germanys call, it was out decision to make. germany chose the deescalation and diplomacy route.

long before reagan and gorbachov started cuddling btw.
and what do you know, it didnt go too bad.

thats where we go back to the "both can claim it was their approach that made peace in the end"-part, meaning, thats where we start going in circles and ill leave it at that.
i really better stay out of this for now. i just discovered that "im ready for nukes" thread...this is no place for me anymore.

it probably hasnt been for a long time.

Hey Guys,

That was nothin' personal, really. Were you to meet me you'd see a fun cross between Ghandi and Lewis Black.
As for ad hominems, if Limaugh, et al,can do it so can I. Damn the passive-aggressives who veil their words.

Besides, it makes for good entertainment for those only lurking. I'm actually suprised you didn't get the entertainment value part of it.
Trailer Park Boys isn't hillarious for no reason. Swearing and verbal abuse rock the entertainment world.
Uh, oh, I forgot...this is a serious newsgroup.

Also, I'm just soooooo cynical/satirical. Well, probably not cynical enough actually, but still, pretty jaded to the fray.

And you're right: it's just political BS, all of it. I'm kinda suprised that in a political conversation anyone would get their nose-out-of-joint by being called an idiot. "Y'ain't one u' them pussy liberals err ya?"lol

The most interesting thing about USians is that, unlike Canadian, they are generally, uh, a tad too sensitive.
Hey, no offence! Really! Just seem pretty prevelant.
You should come up some time and wittness the unbridled fucking torrent of motherfucking swearing that goes on here. Shit, I'm fucking swearing right now! Canadian's say shit like this to each other all the time. So do New Yorkers. No one takes it seriously. So, please, don't you.

I actually quite enjoy the level of disparity of opinion here. Personally, I thrive on the battle, the fray, the Doc's to the head.. But many do not. I think DC is one of those who does not.

Cheers

Yep. I'm aware of that. If I need to I will reinstall at least the simpler of the two boots if I can't get a stable Paris system this week. My first priority was just to boot to something/anything quickly to make sure that all the hardware was plugged in right. In fact I'm also a bit keen to test whether this same install, which was unstable on my last system, can be made to run nicely with the new board. It's kind of part of my fault finding. Of course a re-install may fix it in any case, but I'm just interested to see if the new mobo on it's own will clear it up.

>just messin though, I've done the same thing

Yeh, I know it's dodgy. I just wanted to get it running. Next months pay will probably buy new OS drives for it anyhow.

no doubt man... obviously you know your shiznit... dunno why I even pointed that out

congrats on the new puter mang

I literally kicked the shit out of my computer hoping it would break so I could replace it,, but nope... still tickin.

I just had to make a "panic installment" of Paris on my LOGIC AUDIO computer since the motherboard seems to be faulty on my Paris computer. Everything installed as it should and the default ppj opens correctly. The problem is that I can't open a project from there. I loose contact with the program and eventually the computer "blacks out". Do any of you recognize this problem ? P4 2,66 2Gb RAM, Matrox 450(I had the same in my Paris computer and I didn't have any problem), 3 EDS, 2 MEC, M-audio 1010LT, Thanks in advance !

Peter'll prolly build myself a 64 bit box as soon as the whole 64 bit thing is sorted out with all of my various DAW components. I'm just looking for 10-15% headroom right now, just iin case I need it. Never hurts to have it handy, though this DAW seems to be quite happy running 4 x 21" CRT's with a pair of them being driven by a Matrox G450 PCI card, a couple of RME HDSP 9652's and 3 x UAD-1's. I'm so happy with the way this has finally come together that I might not screw it up for a while.

;o)

I know how you feel. I've spent the last few months on my half dead 1.2Gig box, and it's been getting so bad I've been loading one boot, then the other, desperately trying to get something stable. During the last project I was doing I couldn't switch between projects in the end because it crashed 2 of 3 times. I had to shut Paris down and load it back up again every time I wanted to switch songs.

Gets mighty frustrating.

Cheers,

Kim.ill have to keep this sorta short cause i lack the time, sorry for that...

"DC" <dcicchetti@urs2.net> wrote:

>>I am not sold on Rabin as the peacemaker in the middle east.

ok, so lets stick be the numbers: by the numbers, rabin is by far the best "terror-reducer" there ever was down there. thus, until proven otherwise, i take the freedom to assume his way was the better one. quite easy. i dont see any reason to somehow become a "believer" into other methods. not when theyre so quite obviously not working yet.

> BTW, you DID call the current Israel >approach "muscle flexing" so who is the cliché here?

that wasnt meant as a cliché, and from my understanding of your language a loooong way from dumb brabbling like

"israel is making the cowboy". youre really projecting something here. but if muscle flexing (which at least in my language is just another term for "impress with strenght", which is what it is) sounds like "cowboy" to you, its not what i meant.

>No projections involved, I simply have heard all those terms coming >from europe and "muscle flexing" is not much different than we can continue this discussion in german if you like :-) >>so, yes, i do acknowledge that both roads can lead to success.

>An I said I hoped there was a peaceful solution.

that is not the same thing as "i believe in peacul approaches".

>>from a palaestinian point of view, israel is the aggressor
>
>From a lion's point of view, your kid is food. From a rapists >point of view, your wife is a party.

very enlightened. again, ill say upfront that i despise BOTH sides down there. yet, if i try very hard to get into the dumbass religious "OMG its our holy cities" dogma, i can at least see hwere theyre coming from, and of course i can see that for both sides. here we have two radical partys, both believing the land to be theirs, both believing the land to be sacred, so they kill each other over it with whatever means possible. the one has planes, so they use planes. the other doesnt have planes, but suidicide bombers, so they use suicide bombers.

theyre all idiots. but i dont feel inclines to take sides. i dont take any side - that you take the israel side is quite obvious. that you imply i wuold be taking the palaestinian side only because i dont take the israel side is also obvious, and a nice example.

hear me: i dont take anyones side down there. i take the side of anyone who says "lets stop the violence and try to talk about it - and even if it doesnt lead anywhere, maybe we will have a little less casualties during the talks". thats the approach that gets my vote. cause thats the only approach that ever changed anything down there, even if it was not enough to convince you. although, how the total constant failure of the current method can then be any more appealing to you is beyond me. i guess its a question of what one believes in as always.

>because you are steeped in atheist ideology about >cultural relativity so you cannot see when a culture has become >degraded by hate and blood-lust.

im not an atheist. atheism is a religion of its own.
an atheist would say "i KNOW there is no god".
i personally would say "its laughably arrogant that people believe that they know whether there is a god or not, and if that wasnt enough, what kind of god it is".
that makes me more or less an agnostic. tought id make that one clear.

>That was painful for you wasn't it? I should appreciate the effort, >but you really should admit how awful their actions are more often,
>and leave off the excuses.

it of course wasnt painful in the slightest, youre projecting again. its not too hard to look at the slaughtering down there and give an "im an idiot" badge to both sides. that not taking one side doesnt seem neutral to you, who is quite obviously on one side, thats natural and i cant do anything about it.

> Do you have any >idea how patronizing, not to say racist, it is to hold a double >standard where you understand terrorists, but condemn the only >democracy in the middle east?

you must be talking to someone else. i dont hold a double standard. i dont understand terrorists. as i said above, ill take sides with whoever comes up and says "lets stop the violence". thats the side im on. because it has the best track record. end of story.

>>from their point of view, theyre actually doing exactly

>They don't have planes because their mullahs told them they don't >need scientific progress 1000 years ago

doesnt make a difference why they dont have planes. the logical decision for a religious fanatic is to use violence. depending on the tools at your disposal, you choose. its the way violence works.

> and they use suicide
>bombers because they are a degraded culture love it when things can be so easy. this forum is full of easy solutions...

>BULLSHIT! If I was on their side, I would advise them to go Ghandi, >renounce all violence, and appeal to the wolrd for justice.

no you wouldnt, because from your (in that case muslim) view, the western world would have sufficiently proven that it responds to peaceful behaviour with slavery and abuse, and that the only language they understand is violence.

it would simply be the exact opposite. its painfully obvious.

>And I >would be the George Washington of a new Palestine. The problem >is that they have no one like that and they would kill them if they >did.

so far, the guy that got killed for going ghandi wasnt on that side but on the other one.

not that im implying that this makes the palaestina side any better (i see more projections coming).

>No, you espouse selective pacifism which you conveniently misplace >in Bosnia, but apply rigidly to Israel.

i dont apply it rigidly to israel, i just look at the numbers and say whose approach so far was the most promising one, whether that fits in your line of thinking or not.

i listed i think 3 examples where violence worked - WW II, "iraq - the first edition" and serbia/croatia/bosnia.

i say you cant apply that to every scenario. that are enough examples where it didnt work (the most obvious from an american point of view being vietnam i guess).

>Derek, you SAID you were a pacifist, well, except for Bosnia.

....and a few other examples you so conveniently overlooked...

>Ok, so you are not a pacifist. How about taking off the moral >equivulence between Israel and the Palestinians?

i want them all to be happy and live a peaceful live.
so i say what i think is the most promising way to go about the situation, which i personally chose based on who had the best track record so far.

of course its not my call to make. so its more violence.
well, their choice.

nothing on this has anything to do with me taking sides.
i find religious fanatics too disgusting to actually even be remotely able to take any side down there. you have my word one that one.

sorry, im not convinced. (your own words)

>De-escalation is what Spain did, and all those in London paid for it.
>This is not the time for de-escalation.

as if the terror attacks wouldnt have happened otherwise.
you must be dreaming. terror is not under control. terrorists will do their thing whenever they can. they dont sit around and say "ok, well, spain wasnt impressed by the terror, so maybe we should just stop being a terrorist".
there is no way to control terror completely. there may be a way to reduce the chances, but thats as good as it gets, and as everybody in london will tell you, they expected a terror attack anyway.

>But there are millions of muslims (I've known a few myself) who well, yeah, there are a couple of things one can use as fuel to make people go to war. one of them is monotheistic religion. only because there are also other fuel types doesnt make it any better.

>Sorry, I got mad for a minute there. I want to hear loud voices of well i gotta tell you its no wonder since youre computing it all through "and the other side is a degraded culture"-glasses.

youll probably even take that as yet more "somehow pro palaestinian apologism". once more: know that the very thought that i would be on the side of some extremist religious bunch of fanatic idiots is absolutely ridiculous.

its just that both sides tend to have a little too much of those. so i cant be on YOUR side, sorry.

>You know what, you're right. We judge europeans by their bitter, >left-wing media, and assume you are all like that.

thats funny. do you speak german? or how do you know what our "bitter left wing media" write and show? because of reports about it on your media?

you know NOTHING about our media. and i assure you that we have a nicely wide range from the very left to the very right.

>We have rejected much of european government positons on Iraq >because of their corruption and collusion with Saddam, and that >fruitcake Chirac has caused more anger than anyone since Adolf.

more than anyone since adolf? whew. thats a tough statement. got angry there for a second again or are you serious about that?

>We are aware that following much of europe's positions could put >our lives in even graver danger.

that is your opinion. its your take on the question, how to best approach the problems the world is facing.

no. remove their motives is the best way. can it be done? i dont know. you dont know either. the one guy who tried so far by coincidence has the best track record down there (did i mention that yet? oh i did, sorry ;-). so my money is on that approach.

>Kill them all. Nuke 'em until the survivors say "we give up" you guys are really thinking to "let the cat out of the bag"?

boy that would so come back to you and the entire world. i hope it never comes to that. im not even willing to discuss this.

>Can you do it? Or do we have to save Europe again?

well, if it goes the nuke way, there wont be much to save, so whatever.

the fault in your scenario is that one side must be right.
of course i would neither have any understanding for
(of all things...) soccer hooligans nor for religious fanatics.

heres a hint: BOTH sides can be wrong.

>The same way we fought the kamikazis and moro tribesmen, and this is another dimension.

oh and which one would THAT be? shall i guess? i guess...i guess...i guess its yours!

am i right?

i case your religion is the one i would guess it is, no thank
you. historical track record stinks too much for my taste.

yeah, that could be true. as sad as it is, it could even be true that some other religion is right.

but im pretty sure we will never find out for sure, so it remains a question of personal belief, with which i have no problem whatsoever.

damn, pretty long post again. sorry. not sure if i can reply to a potential reply from you, so if you dont feel like replying anymore (looks like the discussion continued without me, you guys must be pretty tired of this by now), no problem. Is anyone from the Aussie Parasites going to the SMPTE show in Sydney? If so it would be great to catch up.

Cheers,
Sakis'll be there, but I'm not sure which day(s).
Maybe Tuesday, unless a job comes in.

Better put your helmet on, though. When Don gets wind of this, he might want to stage a comeback, in spite of his very recently expressed desire to put all this 'pollitical bullshit' behind him (now that he's er climaxed, as it were) and get back to that 'hard rock tune' of his that he's been tracking.

So yeh. So give er, if it happens. Spare no expense LOL. I'm lappin it up.

>Hi Kim,
Glad to see you got that board. It should work out great for you.
With the Gig of ram I assume that is 2 sticks of 512 right because you want the far better memory performance of dual channel?

You really should do a fresh install. This board is very very very different than your old one. If you have a broadband connection the reinstall of windows should take at most 45min to 1hr. Paris takes about 10 min to install and configure with a 2 card setup. 3 or more can take longer mainly in trying to fiddle around with the right PCI slot combo. As with all motherboards you can not completely control PCI steering. If a PCI slot shares with multiple on board devices which most do most if not all of the on board devices will follow the PCI IRE setting. You will find on the newer mother boards handle IRQ sharing far better than before. This board especially so. PCI slot 2 and 3 are the best ones to start with when adding cards. I wouldnt bother with the SPDIF connector just plug in the USB/Firewire header. On most newer cases you will get and extra PCI slot space above the AGP slot. If not then put the header on the very bottom one sense this is the least likely to be used. I would leave your NIC ports enabled till your all done installing windows and updated everything. The NVidia one would be the best one to leave enabled sense it is integrated into the chipset. I would also use something other than the on board sound if you are using audio software other than Paris. I'd suggest the MAudio AudioPhile 2496 or 192 models or use the M-Audio FW Audiophile. Otherwise RME stuff.

Here is a quick guide to how I would install things on XP in general.

Makes sure there are no PCI cards in the machine when doing a fresh install of windows. Only the AGP video card.

Install windows sp2.

install marvell nic driver only! from driver cd. Don't install the other drivers sense you will be updating them later.

Download newest @BIOS flash utility and newest BIOS for bios for MB and flash BIOS.

http://asia.giga-byte.com/MotherBoard/FileList/Driver/driver_gbttools_gbt_@bios.exe

http://america.giga-byte.com/MotherBoard/FileList/BIOS/bios_k8nsu939_f6.exe

Install ALL windows xp sp2 updates (use custom update not express).

Install them all don't ask any questions just install them dammit.

Install Newest N-Vidia motherboard chipsets drivers.

http://www.nvidia.com/object/nforce_udp_winxp_5.10

Install newest video card drivers.

Install Windows SP2 FW800 patch.
<http://support.microsoft.com/kb/885222/en-us>

Install any audio and Midi devices.

Install your main recording software

Install any DSP PCI cards, i.e., UAD, TC POvercore.

(859) 635-5762 Chris, you're a frippin' legend. :o)

Yep, worked that out, and it's cheaper and all. :o)

Hehe, yes well Windows wouldn't even boot until I did a repair. ;o)

>As with all motherboards you can not completely control PCI steering.

Yeh well I haven't actually played with that yet, only had a look in the BIOS and the manual. In the next couple of days I'll have a further look at it.

>PCI slot 2 and 3 are the best ones to

I think I loaded the EDS cards into 2 & 4 at this stage. I'll have a look at where the interrupts are sitting hopefully tonight and see if a change is in order.

> I wouldn't bother with the SPDIF connector

I was actually hoping to use the SPDIF as very very rarely I use a softsynth or something from outside Paris and figure I could use the SPDIF to record them into Paris. Haven't played with it yet though.

Also I plan to get one of these famed DAC-1's in the next 12 months or so and would like to use it for that too.

My case circa 1998 has that. :o)

AND it's the gigabit one. :o)

Only other thing I use is Wavelab, which I plan to have another shot at using the ASIO drivers for. Even though I use Wavelab, in any case I rarely make any audio decisions in Wavelab. Mostly I do all that in Paris. I might author a CD in Wavelab, but that's just adjusting track gaps times etc and sound quality isn't an issue.

>I'd suggest the MAudio AudioPhile 2496 or 192 models >or use the M-Audio FW Audiophile. Otherwise RME stuff.

At this stage I'm still mostly a Paris guy, though the ability to use Cubase or something would be nice...

>Here is a quick guide to how I would install things on XP in general.

Hehe, geez, you do a bit of a dodgy rework and next thing you know everyone's on yer case! ;o) Seriously though that's some fantastic advice below and I will undoubtedly go though and do pretty much the whole thing to the letter with a couple of minor adjustments. You even provided links! How easy! :o) I can see I'm going to have to find the cash to get these hdd's a bit sooner than I planned aren't I? ;o)

Thanks heaps, and thanks heaps for that MB recommendation in the first place too.

Cheers,

I think the temperature must be something like BC on the Canadian = westcoast. Maybe not so stable and cold winters, you see we have the = Golf Stream right outside in the Northern/North Atlantic sea. So it can = what is your latency set at during this project?

is that 60-75% vst performance or actual system performance... via windows task manager?

it sounds like your pci bus is working pretty hard... i just have 2 uad's and the rme running on mine right now.

i would say that amount of cpu usage would be right if you buffer/latency was set at 256 or maybe 512 and/or you were using some native plug-ins. but then again i don't know how much of a strain all your pci stuff might be causing the cpu.

i have the xp2800 on an asus a7n8x-e with 2 gig of pc3200.

i am playing tracks from a 7200 8meg cache 80 gig WD drive.... (no sata).

on average... i will have 48 tracks or more playing.... 50-90% uad-1 usage.... a couple convo reverbs... and 12-20 other native plug-ins going. my buffer is set at 1048. that usually takes me to between 50 and 70%.... 75% tops.... monitoring with the vst performance meter in SX.

thought that might help give you some kinda reference.

i am gettin ready to do a mix with a gob of tracks.... like 70 or something ridiculous.... mostly because 16 of the tracks are from the london symphony orchestra! boing! :-) well see how she holds up!

AMD Athlon XPs w 266mhz FSB (not Sempron or AMD64).

Decent ram and a hefty p/s 450watt or higher.

I still want to beef up the processor but will have to wait for now.

I believe that would be our old friend Brian Tankersley...what if i follow the wrong trail by mistake and end up lawyers office of the guy (whose other parts i followed by your advice) he's suing.
he'll listen to my besotted tale of woe and offers me a job as a numbers runner for one of his other clients. then after a few successful runs i collect my money only to find out that it's counterfeit. this of course happens after i go in to pay the parking ticket i got in my rented car since mine is the real trail i should have followed.

now i'm in court facing 3 to 5 for passing bad bills. the lawyer who got me into this shit to begin with refuses to take my case saying that i should have known better than to follow his advice.

after the paramedics put my immobile body onto the gurney and in to the ambulance we proceed to the hospital where the crash cart awaits my expected arrival. making the final turn to the hospital entrance the rear door of the ambulance swings open as the first of two wheels hits the dead cat in the road. the ensuing bump while not large is enough to sever the relationship between the gurney and floor of my ride. my open eyes catch sight of the medics in the back as i pass them out the door.

the ambulance screeches to a halt but the gurney continues on striking a bike messenger just hard enough to alter my direction 90 degrees to port and down the rather sizable steep hill. as my speed gathers down the hill, the thought "oh crap" begins to replace the previous ...

i could go on about this but the memories are far too painful for me to continue and i'm sure you'll understand my stopping.

Still using mine, and added another for my live band's usage.. zero problems. Paris is a 1900+ and the other a 2200+. My only regret is that I could never find the firewire capable model in stock anywhere.

i am no computer expert and i may just be plain off.... but for what you are doing.... that cpu usage sounds kinda high to me.... especially if your buffer setting is at 8192!!

you are syncing PARIS and SX together right? i wonder if that puts a noticeable strain on the system.

being that its working like you want... if it were me i wouldn't worrying about trying to get the cpu performance any better. you know how puters are... sometimes you can make things worse by over tweaking.

picking up a 3200 might give you that extra 5-10% you are looking for.... but you won't know till you pop it in. i'd just go make music and plan on going to the athlon 64 at some point in the not to distant future.

that's my $.02.

I think this is very possible, though it wouldn't seem so. when sharing a common clock source, there are some major interactions between the CPU usage meters on both machines.....do something on one machine, watch the CPU meter change on the other.

Thanks for your thoughts.

Your compliment is appreciated thank you
I've worked with Black artists all my career-Luther Vandross,Miles Davis, Chaka Khan,Marcus Miller and I don't mean for a couple of hours.I considered and consider these people good friends.I listened to Miles tell me stories about being a black musician and touring the south so I can just say to you DC whoever the Fuck you are (as Suzy Greene from Curb Your Enthusiasm might say)You know nothing about me or my history.
I am very sympathetic to the cause of Black america and know that the white Mutherfuckers running the show in washington (to quote Miles Davis) know nothing about the plight of Black america let alone poor Black america and sometimes it takes a loudmouth Like Kanye West to stir things up. I'm sure that 90% of Black america was cheering when they heard him say that.
this was a terrible incredible tragedy that happened. As I said before al Sharpton said (and I'm no big fan of his) when the fate of a Brain Dead white woman at Florida was at stake Bush,Delay,Frist,Hastert on the drop of a dime made it to DC to sign legislation for
