room <http://www.pccasegear.com/prod2187.htm>), and this seems to be the only board on their compatibility list that's like to allow dual boot into W98SE / XP.

Anyone out there using a P4C800 board with PARIS ?

All suggestions appreciated

Thanks - Stewart.FWIW, I have the Peluso 22 47 and still like it.

e I'm using those modular 1/4" balanced patchbays.

If this client wasn't such a good friend, I would have told her to pound sand.

;o)is that really you???.....I thought you dropped off the face of the earth.
How have you been?

There's definately something screwy with the power in these parts though.
This morning for example the UPS was beeping, complaining that it had no mains power supply. Mind you my DVD burner was sitting there operating without issue, as was my stereo amp. I can only assume we dropped down in voltage by 10% or something... enough to upset the UPS into taking over, but still enough mains to supply most appliances. It only did it for around a minute then came good.

In any case there seems to be no immediate need to buy a new one. The router has crashed a couple of times, and I'll need to upgrade the firmware soon to fix that. The lates firmware (which I'm not yet running) seems good, but I'm waiting for the next bugfix release before I jump on board with that one though, as firmware upgrades mean a bit of stuffing around. Once I do the next u
