neers, etc, etc, etc, and then ultimately what would happen is that the label would get ahold of it, and then would just turn around & send it off to Chris Lord-Alge to mix, and it would come back sounding just like Nickelback. lol

So, the era of "Aja's" is gone, which I guess explains why we haven't heard anything like it since... there will be no more "Sgt. Peppers", no more "Pet Sounds" or "Rumours" or "Hejira's", there will be the occasional song that kicks ass just because chaos theory stipulates that even good things can happen in synchronization at times, but the album as a landmark, as a piece of literature, is dead. Perhaps we all realized it already, or perhaps we all were kind of waiting/hoping for the next earth-shaking/mind-blowing one. But I don't think it's ever going to happen again - not in the popular realm, anyway, and that's the sad part. The fringes are of no import in this regard - and I say this as a guy who's always been on the fringes, both in terms of success AND preferred genre; there's always been good stuff on the fringes.... but what kind of impact would the Mona Lisa have had if the only people who ever saw it were DaVinci & the girl who's picture he painted? Think about that one...

OK, ran

Feel free to differ. But you're just speculating about what she MIGHT do whereas I can talk about what our current pres did do. She could hardly do worse than our recent track record, and I can prove it over less than three beers. So come on over, I'll buy the beer! :^)

But in any case I am not ready to choose a candidate yet, it's far too early.

BTW, Hillary spoke today a couple miles from here and I was too busy to make it over there to hear her speak. Since the Dems are having their convention here next year I'll likely have more chances to hear a bunch of Dems, and hopefully some Repubs, too. I wonder if we'll see any
