ike a parrot of the left and all I see you post here are trolls promoting a certain philosophy that is centered around hating Bush, but at the same time denying that you have any partisan agenda.....sor of like Howard Dean's following quotes:

"I don't hate Republicans as individuals. But I hate what the Republicans are doing to this country. I really do."

followed by :

I hate Republicans and everything they stand for.

There's more and whenever I see one of your posts like this I just shake my head because I know what's coming. It's as predictable as listening to a speech by Howard Dean. You know what's coming and you know why because you've heard it all before.
I guess I could blog your posts and those by Dean and find similar and different positions, but the bottom line similarities are the staleness of the same old crap.....bomb throwing based on an unquestioned agenda which seeks to justify itself by the end justifying the means while denying any attempt at balancing the agenda with reality.

after all, it would take a great expense to re-tool vs. buying from an entity that already produces the product and marking up the shit out of it.
