Would it even be necessary to "pick from a list" or "assign" total delay? Seems like the total delay would simply be as low (or as high) as needed to compensate for the plugins used. (Unless I'm missing something, which is always a possibility...)

As for me -- I'm still on 98, 512 ram -- could I run this thing right now, just to compensate for EDS fx offsets, submix offsets, etc.?

-- interested in how this turns out -- thanks -- chas.

Here is a free room node calculator from Floyd Toole. Your friend is suffering from low-end cancellation. There are many good recourses on the web.
Start here:

<http://www.realtraps.com/info.htm>

Bass traps are the best way to solve this problem (it sounds counterintuitive to get more base by absorbing bass, but it is true.)

Yes. That is more than enough for me personally. Money is now in same vicinity as mouth. The software has been purchased.

Thanks,
