ASUS board. This is mighty handy with Paris and they are cheap. I did try mine with my Gigabyte GA-K8NS 939 mobo and it wouldn't work, but it did work great with the older ASUS product.

As far as using your older rig for a VSTi host, just make sure you've got a good ASIO soundcard (RME HDSP series is highly recommend here), 2G of RAM and a powerful enough CPU to operate at the lowest possible latency settings.

Logic
together on the same machine when I first got Paris; in order to be able to use Logic's MIDI feature to playback/trigger my programmed synth parts & record them into Paris (v2).

I don't recall the exact procedure, but you had to
