>America's appetite for oil is our own problem and we can't blame it on other countries. We don't own their oil.

The "foot on the throat" is really "feet on the throat" and the feet belong to OPEC and other oil producers aided by an oil industry that is more and more consolidated, monolithic and multi-national. But the responsibility for putting our throat under those feet is largely our own.

In order to get these footprints off of our throat it's not enough to complain about the governments of other countries, whether they deserve criticism or not. We need to face up to our own responsibilities and do something about:

A) Our own oil consumption.

This is key. However you do it, consider using less petroleum. Drive a more efficient car. Drive less. Go biodiesel (from efficient sources). Go electric. Ride a bike. Take a bus/train. Walk.

This will help make us less dependent on foreign oil, less manipulable by terrorist factions, less susceptible to market manipulations and better able to face the future when oil is harder to come by (oil is not an infinite resource, google "peak oil"). Reducing our consumption will also help relieve our shortage of refining capability, which, for a variety of reasons, we are bumping into pretty hard right now.

Also significant, using less oil will help improve local air quality and pull back on greenhouse gas emissions.

Win, win.

Our brilliant politicians had no will for war, it took the Japanese attacking us to get us involved. They wanted to just stand by and watch the world be taken over. WE need to thank the veterans for having the will to fight and win WWII. left to the pacifists we'd all be speaking German, or maybe Russian

As far as the veterans that fought England, they had the will to fight and be free from tyranny and unfair taxation. At least Americans were willing to fight for and earn our freedoms, unlike others that are never willing to fight for freedom.

We owe our vets a debt of gratitude.

Thank you!

Thanks very much... One mystery though: how come I haven't run into this before when doing drag-and-drop copies of audio files out of protocols on a Mac? I've successfully taken several sessions worth of files from another studio back home this way -- drag 'em from the Mac onto an external hard drive, lug it home, plug into the PC and go...

What did my friend do "wrong" (different) this time?

Hehe. It's compatible with my goal to get a new toy without spending too much and without too big a learning curve.

And I always loved my old EPS. I'm sure there is better stuff out there than the ASR now, but I'm also sure it's not in my budget. ;o)

I picked it up for $480 off ebay, so...

But if you must know, I loaded a little jazz demo off the one of the disks this morning while having a play and I think that yes, it might be. ;o)

I've heard the KSP-8 and it is very nice and natural. Brian T sold his = M 6000 as I recall after substituting it's reverbs with the KSP-8. I think that was the = deal anyway.
Kurly Rumor is serious bang/buck if reverb is the only thing you're = looking for.

Another vote for the M3000-

If you like the Paris EDS plate reverb at all, you will LOVE the M3000- it is so unobtrusive but real.

However, my friend Darren Rahn makes a living as a producer, among other things, and really loves the KSP8...

Just because Chavez is a communist and wants a communist government doesn't mean that the people want it. I think they are proving that by their protesting.

Oh yeah, I forgot, that's just the dictator Bush's CIA at work, not the real people of Venezuela.

One thing it should always mean is that you can say what you think. Even if it is extremely critical of US policies. This is the most basic principle that this country was founded on.

Try to remember what it is that you are so bent on defending. Basic American ideals. Like freedom of speech!

No.

GeneYou got it..

Question; Do you think every american wants capitalism? or would they prefer free health care and social security???

My Canadian friends have to come over here because the waiting list for things like surgery or even test results are so long. It doesn't work there, and it won't work here, if our government runs it. Our government mismanages everything!!!!!!! Yes there should be some kind of low cost or free healthcare. It should only be for American citizens!

Social Security is a joke! The idiots in government keep robbing it to pay for their pork programs. The first law should be that they can't touch it because they never pay it back and it's our money! Second should be that the people have a choice in how it's invested, it's our money!!! They should have split programs where you can have it invested in different accounts so that it's diversified.

The mentality that the government should take care of you is a bad one. The free ride in this country is going to be over soon!!!!!!!
