eb Bush, and get serious about alternatives. Now.

The idea that we can run cars and more on water, and there are super efficient engines out there but the gummint or big bizznezz is supressing these technologies is simply not credible.

The simple truth is that not one of these schemes has ever panned out. No one supresses them, they just don't work.

BTW, we already have 50+ MPG engines, they're called diesels, and the US has basically outlawed them on environmental grounds. They will be back though.
