and jail"... ;o)

Cheers,
Kim.Mmm... I think the archives only go back about 2 and a half years...
Chuck was only keeping 12 months. You might be lucky though.

Cheers,
Kim.

Was that the one without the daughter card?

I've got one EDS sitting here that has a non-functioning daughter card (no eds effects work, but otherwise works normally).

Cheers,

TCHi all,

New blog about guitar, sound, and recording.

Take a look.

thanks

<http://dcguitarjournal.blogspot.com/>Over the years the processors from Apple, intel and AMD have all leapfrogged each other in speed at times. It's like a feature in a sequencer software package, somebody comes out with a new feature, and six months later every body else catches up. It will always be this way.

The need for speed will always drive us, but it's not the whole story, ease of use, usefulness, and productivity are more important.

You have to look at what they are really saying. The Power book with its G4 processor is a Pentium III era process
