-----=_NextPart_000_006E_01C83DF0.641719A0--REALLY? Damn, your ears are better then mine, then... I'm not hearing ANY grain at 88.2k - are you using that samplerate, or 44.1???

Honestly, so far i'm feeling like the Pantheon is like a 480L in a plugin, in terms of quality - or damn close to it.

DC,
Those look pretty snazzy. A little heavy but I'll bet they are smooth.
Well, they look smooth anyway. I considered using my Genelec 1037s live too. A little too heavy but not too big. They would do some nice work for a small PA.

The multi trip, weight thing with no roadie and doubles on the weekend = got me out=20 of moving my 3 way EAWs (88lbs on tripods) (Extra Added Weight) and 2 x = 900 watt=20
@ 8 ohm power amps in the 90s.

Both the Eon and the Mackie are decent and can sound good with=20 a bit of massaging.

These, however

<http://www.tannoy-speakers.com/s.php?product=3D39&title=3DV12&s=3D1>

Will positively murder either one.

Studio grade sound, great projection, clear as a bell, sweet and = really powerful. There is a version with a built in amp as well.

More money of course, but if you are playing out, and really want to sound phenomenal, there is nothing out there as good. And, because they are dual-concentric (horn fires through the center of the woofer) they are very compact. We install these all over the western states.

DJ,

> ...o'yeah...I forgot to mention that I bought it.....

Well I guess so ? !!! I'm glad it sounds like it's supposed to. I wouldn't expect anything less from UA. They always do it right it seems. I hope Paris likes it too. I've yearned for one once I = realized what it did and how much it is used by the big boys.

I'll report back after my weekend.

Long/early gigs tomorrow and Saturday.

Oh, and Sunday the Pats are winning again.

Can't miss that.

Rod and DeeJ,

I'm downloading 4.9 now . . .

I'm not buying 'til I'm sure it at least works.
I never render stereo plugs but probably will need to now that my system is one EDS shy and there more UAD goodies to use.
I've been able to squeak by just rendering all the mono instances when the UAD is at it's max.

I'll report back if it happens tonight. I'm supposed to have a = session but there is 8" of fresh snow that I just shoveled. It's still = coming down.
I'm guessing they're going to cancel.

I can definitely agree about the mia midi. I've had a mia for a while now, it's a great low latency low trouble low cost option for two in two out midi and spdif. In fact its the only audio interface I have now for cubase!

lame attempt at humor at my own expenseWood will always sound better than plastic. Depending on your budget and SPL requirements, for passive boxes, check out the JBL MRX series.

The new JBL's are quite light weight and good sounding. The SRX is better but more expensive. I am not a huge fan of powered speakers, too many compromises. Oh, and as someone who repairs speakers as part of my living, I would say avoid the EONs... If you MUST have powered plastic boxes het these:

German built power and an up-sized compression driver. They sound and work great.

The V12 , BTW, is a totally different product than the studio monitor line and will cover large amounts of people, even outdoors where studio monitors will not. I once did a brass quintet with a pair of them, a Mackie 1202, an amp, and a pair of KM84's. Sounded like a CD, and it was outdoors for 700 people. Their only drawback is the price... The street price for the passive V12's is 3K a pair, and the powered are about 4600 a pair. You can get a pair of SRM450's for about 1400 or less.

on the other hand... if you want your speakers to be part of the light show... get the Eons and push them REALLY hard. they have a light bulb that acts as a capacitor so you don't blow the drivers when you crank 'em. its actually pretty fun to watch in a dark room.....

They are EV made drivers, and the housing is a modified SX300 case. Standard stuff... DL12 derivative on the bottom and DH2T on the top. The Dynacord amp module puts out 350/150W. The net weight of the box is 36 LBS.

They are quite good... all our rental customers prefer them over the EON15G2's we also have in rental (and I don't have to fix them!). For those that aren't aware, I have attached a photo of the amp board from an EON... that's all there is... :-) chrisl@adkproaudio.com I have a chance at picking up an EDS500 card.

Since my mobile rig is only used for tracking, and all mixing is done at home, would I be OK replacing one of my two EDS1000 cards with the 500, thereby releasing one of the 1000's for the home mixing rig?

My thinking is that the tracking rig won't use any efx anyway.

Thanks.

pabOh, and the two SK-3 bulbs are only in the EON passive speaker system...
but yes, they light up pretty good! :-P and I could use some advice. I set up their first pc, but they've decided that running both apps on the same box has been causing some slowdowns.

So, we're splitting it across two pc's, and here's where I need sync advice.

PC #1 - 2.4GHz Dell, XPsp2, running Reason with a usb-based controller keyboard.
It can have an Ensoniq audio/midi card if needed.

PC #2 -- 2.0GHz Dell, XPsp2, Cubase LE, PreSonus Firepod into a TI chipset-based FW card.

How do I get both machines to sync up and run together? And with the apps on two machines, I'm pretty sure they can no longer use something like ReWire, and will have to have either an analog or lightpipe connection between the Reason pc and the FirePod.

Thanks!

Well, crap. I knew it sounded too good to be true. I guess I wasn't paying that close of attention when I hooked my cards together.

Unless someone has a daughtercard lying around they don't need anymore....

pabYou can check with TheSonic...

Were you using rewire between Cubase Le and Reason? That is normally how you do it. You need to start Cubase first then Reason o it will flip out on you because they are both in stand alone mode and trying to access the audio card at the same time. As far as I know Cubase Le has Rewire support so it should be able to run reason.

If reason is being run on a separate machine then you will need a midi cable from the out of the Cubase machine to the midi input of the Reasons machine. As far as Cubase is concerned you are just using a external keyboard sound module like a Korg Triton or something. So you will need at least 1 Midi I/O on both machines.

If you are using the Firepod then you will only be able to hook up a analog connection between the machines.

If the Emu card you have has coaxial SPDIF on it then you can go stereo digital from the emu to the firepod.

Also I would highly recommend you try out Reaper for this if you have slower machines. Reaper is way more efficient on older machines and does not have any of the limitations of Cubase LE. You will probably be able to use Reaper and Reason together on the on machine.

chrisl@adkproaudio.comI'm still using an ancient EV "Entertainer" system for solo gigs (powered mixer and 12" 2-way speakers, at about 35lb each). It still sounds decent and it won't die. Good stuff. So for my next system I will definitely consider the new EVs you suggest.

I have considered getting a Bose L1 system (played through a couple and they work well for some kinds of gigs) but it weighs about the same as the EV system, is about as time consuming to set up, doesn't include a real mixer and is mono only. The new Bose L2 has a slightly lighter tower base component but is more expensive and offers less inputs unless you buy the add-on FX/remote.

Another new "plastic box" system I've seen recently: Peavy has some inexpensive 2-way powered 10s, 12s and 15s that are remarkably light, and non-powered version that are even lighter. Can't comment on the sound but some reviewers have claimed they are as good or better than the JBLs and Mackies. Dunno.

Cheers,
-Jamie

Entertainer mixers here... most are dead. Great little rig for the day though. The S100 tweeter diaphragms are still available, but they discontinued the foam surround cones for the woofers (although we still have a couple). If you ever need to get them re-coned, you will have to use a Force 12 kit.

had several DOA Mackie

Mackie management fired 200 people, closed the WA plant, and, using the brand recognition, made knock-offs of their own gear and pocketed millions...

>>Hi Neil,

Well, I should amend my comment on Pantheon - the diffusion must have been set low or something else I wasn't aware of in Sonar.

It's better than my first comment. I just listened to it on the dry vocal from the Breverb demos (and others), with SonitusReverb, Pantheon, PerfectSpace, UAD Plate 140 and W2 on a send, alternating between them (all tweaked to be similar, and the way I would setup a deep long vocal verb to really hear the tails).

I'd say W2 is the clearest, but compared to Perfect Space (e.g. another convolution verb), that's may just be a difference between IRs, and the HDIR capabilities of W2 vs. Perfect Space. For vocal reverbs, and richer effects, Pantheon really can do a good job. The damping doesn't seem to work right (seems to be a cut rather than high shelf for whatever reason), so the top end can be a little sizzly by itself. Breverb however, sounds similar, with a little EQ on the top end, but not as much as I might put on Pantheon to make it sit in a mix - hard to judge a mixed track vs. one that can be tweaked, but I would probably pick Pantheon over Breverb, and Pantheon over Sonitus.

I would use Pantheon over the Plate 140 for some things (the plate is narrower of course, so width is an advantage of other reverbs). I couldn't get Nebula to work in Sonar 7, but last time I tried it in Nuendo, I liked it's Plate better than UA's.

This was just at 44.1k as I didn't have time to check higher sample rates before my next session.

All in all, reverb plugins have come a looonnnnggg way in the past few years.

Regards,
Dedric

-----=_NextPart_000_0148_01C83EA6.C1252770--Thanks LaMont and all you guys. I contacted XLN. Their website said AD works with Sonar/Cakewalk v6.0 or higher among others apps. I use Sonar Cakewalk Home Studio 4.0 XL on my laptop and run EZdrummer just fine although it take 60 seconds to load. It is soley for midi work and song creation. I send everything to Paris on my desktop for all audio work. They replied that as long as I'm running VST it should work. Well according to the EZDoc.pdf the EZ drummer needs a software sequencer or virtual instrument host. EZ drummer works with my Sonar/Cakewalk HS v4.0 and the intall program put it in the insert DXi Synth menu along with EDIROL VSC, Dyad DXi and DreamStation DXi2. I don't know the difference between a DX and a VST. I did find the the ezdrummer.dll in the VSTPlugins folder of the EZDrummer and Toontracks folder in the Program files. So do you think AD will work on my laptop and Home Studio v4.0XL?

Is there a batch file that I can create (similar the the Paris "unlock.bat" file) which I can edit via windows notepad that would add file extensions to Mac files for PC use. I got 300 .jpg files from a Mac user without the extensions and I want to add the ".jpg" to in a batch. All files are in one folder.

Thanks.

>Was working on a mix a couple days ago & I was toggling between a couple different versions of the same project... was loading up & trying some different plugins here & there, so i was freezing files to save CPU cycles as I toggled (because that can put a strain on things - having two projects open & toggling between), and as I was freezing two files at once (or more literally, it does it one right after the other when you select two or more & tell it to freeze them), I saved & closed one project immediately after the 2nd file finished freezing.

Well, I didn't really mean to close that project, so I tried opening it again & it wouldn't let me. Got an error message to save the project under another name & try again. Well, I couldn't save it under another name if I can't get it open, now, could I? OK, so I closed out Cubase & relaunched it... same problem opening that project..., rebooted the computer just in case, tried it again, still no dice - same error. So then I thought "maybe I jumped the gun & hit 'save' too soon once that 2nd file had finished freezing... maybe it wasn't QUITE done, even though the little freeze window had just closed?"

So, I went into the folder that contains the freeze files & deleted the two files representing the tracks that I had just frozen, re-launched Cubase (no reboot required) and BAM!
("voila" seemed too weak for this example LOL!), it opened up, no problem.

Now when you do this, you'll get a little window pop up & say that Cubase can't locate freeze files for whatever tracks, & it lists them in said window, and tells you that those tracks will be unfrozen... not a problem, as you can just re-freeze them & it will generate new freeze files.

So, if you ever encounter anything like this - errors opening a project that has freeze tracks - consider deleting perhaps the most recent files you've frozen or even all the files in the "freeze" folder. If you had a lot of files there, you may need to refreeze a number of tracks before you can actually start playing the project back, but it will open (unless the reason for the error lies elsewhere, of course).

I think in this case I just jumped the gun & hit "save" too fast & ended up saving the project before the process was complete (even though the "freeze" window had just closed), causing some kind of corruption in the freeze file... so perhaps there's another tip in there too - wait a few seconds before saving the project, if you wish to save at this point.

NeilYep I got him and we are in contact. Thanks I will keep you informed and thanks for your interest in my music. I take too, too, long to get these out though. I have 3/4 of a third CD in Paris too. Will work on that this winter.

I have done a lot of editing and processing (hard processing, not reversable stuff) of the tracks here already and I would like to be able to save these multitrack project files in a format that Ed could import to his Pro Tools HD rig. Not all these tracks start at 00:00:00 any more. Also I have lots of plugins instantiated on the rough mixes that it would be a PITA to go back and uninstall.

Can I use OMF to accomplish this. Would what I deliver to him open up with the unprocessed tracks on the timeline with the edits intact but without calls to instantiate plugins that he doesn't even use on his system.

I've just never used OMF so I'm trying to find some easy way to pull this off.

Thanks,

Dee| don't even know what you're talking about, but I'm gonna say "Meguiar's Car Wax" (the one in the red bottle).
I've used that to remove scuffs from all kinds of shit, INCLUDING guitar finishes - works great on that!

If it were non-toxic, I'd use it on my teeth.

(heyyyyy, maybe it IS non-toxic - haven't tried it yet! lol)

Nope not yet. Justin is still getting his head around how the time code stuff works and how to implement it. I think it might be a couple more months before we see it. But I could be wrong he does manage to pull thing out of his hat sometimes.

Are you trying to just bounce the tracks with effects and edits or bounce then with edits but no effects?

First off, I'm looking for a vcr for my dad. His died, and he's in the middle of transferring a bunch of videotapes to dvd. Plus, he uses it as the OTA tuner for his tv. He doesn't have cable or satellite.

Guess what? You can't buy a vcr anymore. All you can buy is a dvd/vcr combo player. And NONE of them have tv tuners anymore.

You can get a tuner, if you're willing to pony up $300 for a vcr/dvd recorder combo.

Swell. Guess I need to hit the pawn shop and look for a decent used one.

Second, I looked for a relatively simple cassette-based boombox for my mother-in-law.

Yeah, right. Unless you're looking for something with cd and an iPod dock and multimedia flash card interfaces with a thousand buttons and flashing lights and audio processors, good freakin' luck.

I also listened to an assortment of compact iPod-based boomboxes.

They all sound like ass. Well, I suppose they sound OK for 2" speakers.....

And I got to audition Creative's newest entry into the Bose sandbox -- X-fi.

Yes, it's advertised as a small module that installs inline with your mp3 player and gives you "better than studio-quality" sound by restoring what was lost during the squishing process.

To me, I'm thinking it will sound like overhyped highs and lows, with a lot of splattered sizzle. Like most Bose stuff.

To their credit, Creative didn't disappoint. Gawd, that sounded like crap.

And I saw a Sony desktop sound system based on a cd and mp3 player. Included a sub module and two satellites. 1.5" satellites. Yes, that's right. I've seen bigger speakers in headphones.

WTF are we working so hard at developing our craft for?????? THIS shit is what most kids today think is hi-fidelity audio. Hell, even I can make a mix that sounds good for the crap they listen on.....

Am I just getting old? Am I heading down the road to curmudgeonly ways?

Sheesh.

pabl just analyzed and tuned a 50K surround system with full DSP (ethernet to all speakers) and it most righteously does not sound like ass.

I do think the "everything smaller" esthetic has made things worse tho.

OMF would export tracks with automation, but that's pretty much it - he would get clips as edited, with short handles (or should at least) and everything in place ready to mix.

The only caveat is I think a recent version of PT did break some compatibility with Nuendo (and presumably Cubase as well - Digi.... sigh), but don't quote me on that - may not be an issue going to Ed's system, or at all.

It's definitely the most common way to go to/from PT and most other systems. If there are issues, EDL Convert can actually "filter" an OMF if necessary. Ed may have it already.

I don't think that Cubase/Nuendo will OMF plugins at all, especially if the receiver doesn't have them, and more especially if the receiver isn't Steinberg based.

PT will not like the VST's whether it be Mac or PC, although there is a wrapper that "wraps" VST's to RTAS format.

Phew.

Does me good to hear that. I would like nothing better than $50k of audio gear in my house, but that's half as much as my house is worth, so that's not gonna happen. I'd love to have a full set of the SLS ribbon-based surround speakers, all driven by really beefy class-A amps.

But I completely appreciate that level of goodness. I've often gone to high-end stores and played with the goodies, and gone home depressed and insanely jealous.

I'm also glad to see someone realizes that home theatre sound is every bit as important as music reproduction. That's one of the things that is staring me in the face when we get HDTV later this coming year -- I want the surround system to sound just as musical as the stuff in my studio. I hate the systems that are nothing but sizzle and boom -- you don't impress me with a subwoofer that just rumbles and overpowers everything else. Make it smooth, make it musical, and THEN give it balls.

But then, the people who typically buy the biggest TV that will fit through their door, regardless of how tiny the room is, are also the ones who buy the biggest, baddest sub their utility service will feed, just so they can invite the neighbors over, put on some action movie, and go, "Listen to THIS!!!!!" When I go listen to someone's system and all you can hear is LF rumble, I want to whack them upside the head.

pabHey DJ, I have that scenario all the time, since I record in NUendo, and Mix in ProTools.

1) Realtime Bounce using Plugin Tapelt2 <http://www.silverspike.com/?Products:Tapelt>

Nice..Lets you bounce each track at the same time into a separate folder with or with fx..

2) Get A Pro Tools M-Powered or LE..Use Teh Taapelt2 plug in to boouce the tracks...Then Import into "your new Pro Tools Rig (Lol!) ...Then save Pro Tools Project.....Burn a DVD of the Pro Tools Project Folder...Give To Ed ...

This is the way to Go.. Forget about OMF, due to what Dedric stated about Digi's OMF not playing well with everybody..

watch, plus, Ed's really the best mixer in these parts and is very connected to the "biz" and the movers and shakers therein. I think it would behoove them to hook up with him for a number of reasons. They're coming over tomorrow so we'll talk some more about it.

I think 3 is the limit at best on the MADI card. I think you will break your setup with the four card. PCI bus and especially memory address range will probably reach a limit and things will start stepping on each other.

Or perhaps the simplest & easiest way to go might just be "Tupac Sha-Deeje"

I'm not doing any photo editing, just viewing and occasionally resizing. I was hoping to create a .bat file to place in the directory and have it add the extensions to all the files at once. I just don't know what to write. For example the unlock.bat file for Paris has just 3 lines:

attrib -r *.paf
attrib -r *.wav

attrib -r *.ovw

This removes the read only from the paris demo files when copied off the CD.
I'd like to add the .jpg file extensions.

These use the same 81514XX diaphragms that all their stage boxes having 1" drivers use. For 10 years, I have been powering these 2 boxes with 1/2 of a Crown Vz3600... that's 800W clean per box on a cab rated for 400W.

I run that amp right up to ODEP kicking in on a REGULAR basis, and I have only taken out 3 diaphragms in all that time. Even with large chunks of the titanium missing, they STILL produce high end!

I think your friend should look at how he is powering the 300's.... ;-)

Thanks LaMont,

We met today and did some vocal overdubs. They definitely want to finish the production here so that's what we're going to do. I had sent them a couple of the MP3's to see if they liked the direction I was taking this. I was sorta' horrified when Tracy (the singer) told me that she liked them so much that she posted one of them to their website. ;oO

When comparing them, my mix does sound a bit different than the ones they had up there, though it's still pretty rough. The "Boys and Toys" cut on their site is the rough I sent them.

<http://profile.myspace.com/index.cfm?fuseaction=user.viewprofile&friendid=97869283>

Maybe I can help these guys get some gigs. I hope so. I like them a lot personally. Very nice folks.

;o)I think digital tuners are the reason. I'm not sure where the U.S. is placed in this area, but I believe Australia had some of the first digital TV happening, and indeed were criticised by experts for moving too early. Suffice to say that I bought a DVD recorder 12 months ago. It has a tuner. It's analog. Digital tuners are more expensive and too many people don't understand them nor have an antenna which supports them.

I expect that manufacturers have looked at VHS and gone "Well, they're barely worth making anyhow. An analog tuner is cheap but will be useless soon, and a digital tuner is too expensive if we want to do it right".

I would think that a very good search would still find options, but I can see why they'd be hard to get.

But hey, all technology comes to an end eventually... except the wheel.
;o)

Cheers,
Kim.

2 MADI cards and a AES 32 card = 160 I/O
Even with the extra analog or digital converters attached to the MADI cards it will still be cheaper than a console.

Oh and why do you need 152 channels to record a Punk Band?
I think you will become more creative if you are given more limitations. :)
