>Hi Jon, I can chime in here on this question.

I often work at a local studio <http://www.lamourrecording.com/> which has (2) Yamaha's DM2000. I can't speak highly enough of these powerful beast.

Great feel, 96 channels @ 96K

Pro Tools, Nuendo/Cubase/Sonar/Logic Controller

Nice Comps/EQs on every channel

(8) SPX-1000's DSP processors (REVerbs, Delays, Chorus.etc)

Some of the sweetest (24) Mic pres you'll find

All in a foot print that keeps the Engineer/Operator right in front of the mix..There's a ton more features..

I had a chance (2years) ago to take the then Tascam 3200 for week session spin. Due to the fact that no body in our area had a O2r/96, we rented the tascam.. Man, to my ears and others, the Tascam delivers the goods. I would have to say that the Tascam 3200 sonics was more "thick" than the DM2000.
Different converters and clocks.. But, we managed to get thru a session without opening the manual!!

You're not going to do that with the Yammys.. he 3200 had full eq and dynamics on every channel as well as I think 4 DSP processors for Verbs and dleays chorus FX.. The verbs were the star of this board. The algo's were from TC!! the verb masters. Man, these verbs sounded like our TC 3000 ..really!! The EQs were usable as are the Comps/Lim..We click on the DAW controller layer button, scrolled to the DAW template (Pro Tools)..Boom!! "Houston We have Controll".. That easy.. We had transport, channel faders and Master faders and edit scroll.. To be honest, we probable had more functions,but like I stated earlier, we had not read the manual..
Oh well.

Like I told James, I'm looking seriously @ the DM4800 X2 for my Home studio..To host Both Nuendo & Pro Tools...AND yes, Liek BrianT does in Houston, Paris will be used as the master summing mixer/recorder..

The DM3200/4800 can't be beat in their price range. They have the sound, looks, and product maturity. Tascam knew they had a winner with the DM24, then knocked the ball out of the park with the DM3200, and now DM 4800..

Now that it's official that Mackie has dropped the Ball with the DXB(20K Plus), now selling at drastic discounts. The DXB is a one sweet sounding board as well. At 9k it competes very well with Yammys O2r/96..But, (2) x DM4800 @ around is just as and (imo) more potent ..AND dropped in a cool Argosy, BAMM!..

DJ, I recommended to you (2 months) ago to get the Neve 8816 <http://www.vintageking.com/New-Brands/Neve-AMS/Neve-8816-Summing-Mixer>

In-which you kindly ignored me (Lol!!!) .. But, hey, I tried. Now you know what I've been experiencing all year (2006) when I started using a Soundcraft Ghost to summ.. MAN!!! What a difference. You make better choices and my mixes translate very well to other studios or to car. What ever I hear in the studio, is the way it sounds everywhere else. But, the sound!! Man, mixes just opens ups ..Punchier, tighter..

Aperson would have to drop a $$$ coins to get that sound (ITB).. By adding (Apogees or Lyxn0 Converters with a Lucid or Big Ben Clock..This is close, but still missing some third order harmonic..
Like at our Church's studio, PTHD3 sound way amazing due to that SSL 4000 G/Plus with E series EQs and Lucid 96 clock on the 192s..Way tighter than the Big Ben.. That config, makes my Paris (same Song) mixes sound like drab.

No kidding. It's emabarresing..(Lol!!)..

But, when I drag paris into the Studio sum out to the SSL, BooM!! new Mix!!
..out to the Rosetta..into the Alesis MAsterlink.. Tight focused, ballanced..

And what I cannot recommend to all Cubase/Neundo users to go analog summing..
Put the(Paris) back into you mixes.

N. VaderNo.. :) To me I like Wizoo's W2 much better. the Waves Ir1 has some the best Lexicon 480 samples I've heard. Then there's Voxengo's Convolution verb.(4 stereo or 8 mono) nice !! Then there's TL space (Digi's) convo verb..Killer!!

Then my no#2 fav SIR.. To me Sir's colorless sound just works in all the DAWS.Nice and Rich..

Tha's not to say that Altiverb is not great, it is. But, there are other choices. :) Take care

You must be a hell of a guy and a tremendous resoyurce for Paris users group.
Although you decided to get out of Paris you still bought this latency compensator to show your support to Paris developers for the good shake of the rest of us !!!

Secondly can you please explain this timeline audio sync with editing thing how you test that ?

If this is an issue with all vst plugins that have latency like uad1 why should faderworks solve that ?

I will happily check this though just need some more insight.

I have tested faderwoks in many ways and always had pristine results.
Latency was compensated everytime I was putting the latency number of the latent plugin.
The clever idea of the author is the skip engaged function on the faderworks instance where you put the latency.
So all other tracks get delayed except for the one with the latent plugin.
Now for circumstances where you Paris does not use UAD1 or other dsp cards with big latencies this is a must have for all Paris users.
You can compensate for the latencies eds effects produce like eds compressor with 0.001 (47 samples) or 0.002 (93 samples) or even the difference between eds card1 and two (12 samples)
Or dx plugins that introduce latency like Waves plugins.
L1, Ren comp, ren vox, all these introduce 64 samples.
So if you have phase related tracks like drumtracks this is a must have even with only eds processing !
On the above circumstances there is no perceived difference in the editor with the time line of audio and its playback.
Now if you wanna use UAD1 cards this works great like above but of course there is a difference between audio playing back and visual editing of waveforms.
This delay is caused by the uad1 plugins and no vst plugin can solve that.
Only Paris itself could do that.
On the above scenario there is a workaround though...
You can apply all you uad1 and other plugins using faderworks latency compensator and then after you are certain as what to use then you can render with native plugins.

This will give you the state of the audio playing back on line with editor bar.

If anyone wants to buy this great plugin which also is a great group maker like grouping (muting-soloing) certain groups (up to 32) like all drums all guitars all vocals etc.

There are many scenarios in mixing where you wanna hear just the el guitars and nothing else.

You just openm a guitar faderowoks instance (anyone) and push the solo button on fadeworks.

This way only all grouped guitars (i.e group 2) will be heard.

Or maybe you wanna hear all drums (group1) and all guitars (group2) and nothing else.

Then you just open a drumtrack soloing its group and a guitar track soloing its group, thats simple and effective.

All the above adding the latency compensation DONE ON MY KIND REQUEST for all Paris users from the author (very nice person) I advice you to buy this (for all of you who haven't).

Of course it is your decision and maybe you would like to use the demo whenit will be uploaded with the latency compensator , that alright too.

I am sold !

Can you say stems!

So I decided to put my money where my mouth is and bought the fader works plugin...also sent an email to the company letting them know I'm a Paris user.

the problem with using large latency plugins with Paris is that as you play back the audio, if you are watching the timeline in the Paris editor and applying fader automation using the timeline as a reference, you will hear the audio much later than the reference event is displayed. I think your idea about the spinaudio wrapper reducing the latency to 4092 samples might make this problem go away.

a big mixing project on the go right now, but assuming...

Here's what I'm doing

95% + of my work - Mainly mixing - ocassionally I record 2 tracks...even rarely 4 tracks

Maxed out at 48 tracks so far and ocassionally flying Paris tracks to Cubase
Rig max 16 tracks to and from on average a couple of stereo pairs (stems)

No UAD Cards (yet but their coming)

So using assuming Cubase as my primary mixer what all would need to be purchased.

DonHey DJ,
I don't think you care now that much as you are selling your Paris stuff
Anyway would you consider a partial trade partial money for one mec one adat module and one eds card ?
I have this nice AKG C562BL microphone plus cash.
You can name the difference needed.
Whats that AES out ??
Is this a module with one aes out ? or 4 AES ???
