wrong to steal
from their friend? How hard is it to make the larger point that stealing hurts music, once you have made the smaller point that stealing hurts their friend?

Kids are smarter than we imagine and they look for us as leaders.

Unfortunately we are usually total crap at that job.

(and a bunch of us are running for president)

Replacement due to fire? lol

:DHoly River was absolutely amazing to see them play in person. That lead break is one guy on a 12 string electric tuned to 5ths. Scott could easily outshred John McLaughlin on a 12 string electric, without even breathing hard. I'll never forget the time that Space Opera opened for the Byrds and played 8 miles high so well that the Byrds got pissed and dropped it from their set that night.

If you want to hear something absolutely amazing, download the entire song called Guitar suite and the song called Over and Over and hold on to your hat.

really try to guess which one the Liquid Mix was (never heard went under the pretense that I would automatically pick the one

Actually, the guitar solo starts at about 1.26 on the Over and Over clip, so you can hear a good part of it online.

Also check out the clip of Awake III Holy River is my favorite out of all the clips.

Why does a song called "Guitar Suite" have so much harmonica in it?

I've seen these videos in the past. I don't see the dirt floor factories, but they do exist. It's great that you can now buy a two dollar rubber hammer that's made in China, but we are paying over three dollars for a gallon of gas. Being that I live in Detroit, the motor city, a manufacturing city / state, I have to say, free trade is not free right now, it costs American jobs. It is costing us our standard of living. I would encourage people to stop buying Chinese products, or at least slow down. Everybody should be writing their congressmen about changing our trade agreements.

I just listened to the clip of Holy River. It peters out before the guitar solo. As a guitarist extraordinaire yourself, you'd probably enjoy it on a technical level..

;o)Three bucks for a gallon of gas???
Sheesh, in Australia petrol has hit US$5.00 per U.S. gallon. (3.8 litres). But if you think that's bad, my housemate just got back from the UK, and it's over US$8.00 there.
Live it up!! Me??, I'm gonna buy me another rubber mallet...:-)) Haven't see this yet, but I'll check it out. That's my point "What he says doesn't bother me, it's what I feel he's not saying that worries me likelihood of hidden agendas.

While I agree about his stance on the war and the current administration, I disagree with every other point. And, his voting record in the past is very helter-skelter. I think Russert questions were tough and fair. He seemed to have caught RP off guard with some of those questions of his past political career. To me, after you get past the anti-war, anti Bush stuff, his domestic views are antiquated. All in all, he (RP) comes off as an old politician that needed "new blood" pumped into his veins to revive his stalled political career. Then, the so-called War in Iraq came and he took the most unpopular stance for a Republican. That got him national attention. He's not so radical on the domestic front.

And I don't want to get to the point where it's hard to reverse. Matter of fact, right now it's getting more difficult everyday to reverse this trend, because the American people seem to so often say, "You know I want to be-- I can't be free, if I'm not safe. So, I want my government to make me safe." And they're willing to give up their liberties. And I'm convinced that you never have to give up liberties to be safe. ><http://www.codeweavers.com/>I think what RP is questioning is if Iran/Hezbollah is a threat to the US.
Hezbollah didn't 'kick ass' v. Israel last time, they were invaded and managed not to be beaten. This is impressive tactically considering that the IDF is the second or third best trained and equipped army in the world. But the idea that any state or non-state military force could seriously threaten the integrity of Israel proper is comical. Israel is a nuclear power that everyone knows will defend itself and will receive (and has received) from the US any help it needs.

I think the Smedley Butler line where we defend the littoral waters and that's it is outdated at this point. In fact, I'd say it's a hell of a lot more important to protect international shipping lanes than it is nearly any other country in the world, from a US strategic sense (quick, you can have the Panama canal or Boliva, what's the pick?) But I think RP makes the point that we can't define the entire world as either a our bestest buddy (we will defend no matter what) or our worstest enemy (we will do anything to menace.) In addition to it being strategically insane, we can't really afford it anymore.

I don't happen to agree with what RP has to say about immigration, and a lot of other things, but how is he a racist?

<http://www.parallels.com>

Most of my team at Xerox has gone to MacBook Pro computers running Parallels and it is fantastic. I have created virtual machines of Win 2k, XP, Vista Home, Vista Ultimate and SuSe Linux.

Things can get a bit slow when running 3 or 4 VMs simultaneously.

Most of us have OS X and XP running side-by-side on dual monitors and it really is the best of both worlds.

However, I can't comment on running Windows audio apps in this configuration as I haven't tried. It does, however, run our Windows VPN software with no problems whatsoever.

Hope this helps!

But, the average

American does not "Want" to know nothing. They only want to be told what to do and thnk.

It's not the educational system's fault. The American people have tuned out Politics as a whole. To a man, the American people after Bush 2 elections have tuned out the Goverment nor do they have faith in the Gov. That's why 8 out of 10 don;t know who Dick Cheney is or other US current facts.

SOME Windows programs...Nothing that we'd use really.
Martin HHis coddling of Rice and Rumsfeld leading up to the war soured me on him forever.
Beating up on more or less untested presidential candidates is one thing, asking tough questions of a made and reckless regime, well that can lose you a job. So he got out the knee pads and lip gloss when Condi and Rummy dropped 'round.

You still didn't explian how RP is a racist.

He looks pretty tubular to me.....and there was nothing wrong with the soundtrack.....it's just the French version.

;o) Neil and Tonehouse are right. Sometimes a connouter valve will spontaneously crosstread some of the PVC fittings that are wired to the flush handle and when that happens, you can sometimes try to fumigate the blowhole sprocket with a steam iron, but usually it's quicker to just reseal the PCI cards.

> I might also be asking, if I were Norwegian, exactly what's wrong with those F-16s? Granted, Norway is menaced on one side by those notoriously warmongering Swedes and on the other side by, um, a very large number of fish. Many of those fish are cod, and you Norwegians have been infuriating them for a thousand years by turning them into lutefisk. That said, cod notably lack opposable thumbs, money, and the ability to survive outside of water for more than a few minutes, so I don't see them as likely to acquire any significant anti-aircraft capacity.

This brings us back to the Swedes. I've never been to Norway but I visited Stockholm once and they might be winning in the 'Hot Nordic Babe Race' but I'm not sure even anti-ballistic missile systems would help with that.

So, considering Norway's enviable geopolitical gifts (remote location, rough terrain, long and difficult to breach coastline, a high quality navy, extensive oil reserves and superb energy exploration skill, no ABBA), I might tell that US ambassador where to stick it. A good pilot in an F-16 can defend against nearly any damn plane in the world, and they're dirt cheap to repair and maintain. The planes it can't defend against are owned by the US, Russia, Israel, and India and if Norway winds up in a shooting war with one of those countries, well, it's time to hunker down with the lutefisk and lefse and sue for peace.

people who've refused to use race as an excuse).

1 - we were talking about education, not welfare, health care or feeding the poor. Handouts don't make people want to become more educated, and lack of handouts don't prevent people from going to the public library, doing their homework, or listening in class. Granted not all schools have great teachers, but all schools have students that don't try. Sorry, but you won't get any sympathy by claiming that the "pull yourself up" mentality is wrong and a "white man's" point of view. See my previous paragraph for the reasons why.

2 - you said: "But, I totally disagree with you about "Handouts never work". People, companys,farmers,this country needs bailouts , and have excpeted handouts, bailouts if you will."

Therein lies the problem - "have expected handouts". Any program that gives handouts on a regular basis with no effective method of turning that handout into a basis for an individual to work on their own just creates a dependancy rather than true effective change. Like I said, helping each other is one of the best things we can do with our time and resources, but creating dependancy on handouts is dangerous. We all need help from time to time, and as a society I agree - the balance of wealth is dangerously skewed in many areas: artist, entertainers, and sports stars are at the top of my list, yet that's one area most people are happy to spend money on without a second thought of that imbalance, regardless of their economic capabilities. No need to talk about corporate greed - we're on the same page there, but I think your view that "Those Billionairs love to keep us scabbling and blaming, pointing fingers, while they continue to rape us of what little monies we try to save.." is about as victim minded as I've heard. Really Lamont, if you feel that oppressed by corporate America, just buy Japanese and Chinese. ;-) It's easier than buying American. ;-)) Hope you see the sad humor in that given you are from the Detroit area - the home of companies that have for years resisted alternative fuels, more efficient and enduring engines, supporting the one industry that has more wealth than our country, and holds the whole world by the coholes - oil.

Oh.... 3 - you actually don't know what my race is, so aren't you just reading my post, point of view, and judging my race based on your own perception of stereotypes? How much more racist could one possibly be? Imho the place to stop racism is by individually ceasing to judge people's potential based on skin color, and judging their skin color based on their point of view. The rest will follow. Don't judge just because you think it makes your argument stronger. Quite the opposite.

Dedric
