
Subject: DJ, Stasium question

Posted by cujo on Wed, 22 Nov 2006 15:16:22 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

he Vinco doesn't use an inordinate amount of DSP and it's got two modes. Again as you pointed out, it's an 1176 ringer, but it also does a nice opto. I will be looking at some of the third party plugins as well

Subject: Re: DJ, Stasium question

Posted by DJ on Wed, 22 Nov 2006 16:10:01 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

; Argh... tired of typing now - will fill you in on the confusing > differences between the names of the cards (both new AND old/yet > continuing to be referenced in their own literature), and the > different i/o options you have to pick from later on.
>
>
> Neillt's part of the deal.

"Neil" <IUOIU@OIU.com> wrote in message news:45969c70$1@linux...

>
> That comes with it for that p

Subject: Re: DJ, Stasium question

Posted by [Miguel Vigil \[1\]](#) on Wed, 22 Nov 2006 16:54:05 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

t;>> just one card (at least to start) the Plugins that come with >>> the Home card are fairly scant... IOW, if you wanted the Mix & >>> Master or Synths & Samplers pack & bought them separately along >>> with a Home card, you'd be almost up the price of the 6-DSP >>> Project card, which comes with your choice of either of those >>> to begin with, plus has 3 more chips... see what I mean?
>>>
>>> Just make your first choice an educated one because like I've >>> said, these people don't know their own product as well as they >>> should, and also don't really stand behind it, either.
>>>
>>>
>>> Neil
>>
>>
>Thad, don't bother Don with facts. He's probably just channeling some windbag talk show host pushing YAGF (yet another gloat frenzy).

Probably the one who likes to pretend he's objective but clearly isn't, while at the same time loudly accusing other media of bias. Sheesh.
