Subject: Attention NARAS members! PARIS project up for Grammies
Posted by Tommy Detamore on Fri, 27 Oct 2006 15:42:42 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

/a>
>
>
>
>Interesting, Deej. I have an A8V sitting in my closet since I moved to another audio machine. I'm tempted to go for the Scope Pro card and then build around it, but I might even have the mobo already. Hmmmm . . . .

TCB

"DJ" <nowayjose@dude.net> wrote:
>Here's the hardware situation Thad:
>
>ASUS A8V-Deluxe (BIOS v1014-don't go to v 1015-it will create a nice >overcurrent warning for you and your computer will not boot.)
>
>WinXP SP2 (.NET v1.1) -optomized for audio per the recommended XP tweaks.
>
>AMD 64 4400 X 2
>
>4G Corsair 3200C2PT CL2
>
>GEForce 5500 dual head AGP - IRQ 16
>
>Magma x 13 w/ 4 x UAD-1 cards-host in mobo PCI#4 -all on IRQ 19 and not >sharing with any other device.
>
>Magma x 7 w/ 1 x Creamware Pulsar II and I x Pulsar Home-host in mobo PCI#3
>
>1 x Creamware Pulsar II- PCI#2
>
>NOTE: two of these ulsar cards share IRQ 18 with the LAN controller-it is >active in the bios and I'm having no problems. The other card is on IRQ 17
>and not sharing with any other device Also, in order for this to work the >Creamware STDM cable has one connector 24 inches from the o