Absolutely. We were only doing about 15 when we hit. I am betting the damage comes to 4K on my car alone though.

I took out a windshield with my face when I was 1o... 13o stitches from chin to forehead. I know where you are coming from. Thank God that no one got a scratch today. Our cars are SO much safer today. I would probably not been hurt badly at all in a modern car, but in a 62 Chevy? That's gonna hurt...

If money keeps people above the law then there is no law, just the haves vs the have-nots.

So, how does this change? I mean seriously . . . anybody? How does it change?

I'm pretty sure this happens because there aren't enough CPU resources.
If you have hyperthreading turned off, I've been using a dual core fix for a couple of months now with no issues. We could try turning hyperthreading on and using the fix to see if that solves the crackle.

Good luck!

First of all that's obviously not true.

More importantly, why must we continue to pick the lesser of two evils?
Let's vote for someone who is actually a great man and has great ideas, ethics and a track record that PROVES it. Ron Paul.

Heh, true. But you get my point.

Instant runoff voting or some other preferential voting system would help avoid "lesser of two evils" voting.

error and many,
many others helped bring about 911.

These things are the result of having a leader with no moral center. It's not about doing bad things, it's about being a bad guy.

Remember during the Lewiniski biz, when Bill got several "spiritual advisors" to help him through his troubles?

One of them was Tony Campolo. Tony is a bigtime lefty

Christian who I heard actually say "you don't give a shit" in the pulpit when speaking of helping the poor. Tony cannot be purchased or influence by politics. He is also the friend of a good friend of mine.

Know why Tony dropped out of the "spiritual advisor" group after a couple weeks? (and yes this is insider info) Because Bill is a phony and likely a damn sociopath and has NO intention of ever changing anything other than his lines; for more effective ones. Other pastors stayed in, and later called in their favors and got Bill to speak at their megachurch. At which point I lost all respect for them. Tony walked. He walked because Bill is scum. But we knew that.

So now, it ain't resentment cuz he got to do fun/naughty stuff. Not even close...

DCYou're welcome! Let me know how you like it!
