Hey you guys,

These plugs are harmless but also very useful.
You'll probably love what they can bring to the projects you're in the middle of.

I haven't had anything catastrophic happen to my system installing or using any of Mike's plugs. Goodness knows I've had that in the recent=20 past!

Cheers,
Tom

---=_linux4775502b--Hi Dave,

I've been out of the loop for a while, but have been a Paris user since it's first release. I just rediscovered this newsgroup today and recognize many familiar names. If you haven't found anyone to take a look at those files, I would be glad to do so. I am on a Mac based system, so, if they are not corrupted, I should be able to open them for you. Shoot me an email at bluewing1@charter.net there are lots of alternate universes that people live in.

This is one of them:

I got this link in about two seconds by googling "osama funeral"

my paris posts archive has also been neglected (as in, I haven't updated it in two years) but all the old posts are still there, and I still refer to them all the time.

chrisl@adkproaudio.com Well - despite RP's evolution ideas, that add is the most inspiring I've seen in a long time. I am extremely interested in his vision for the federal government.

many are.

Just so they know what they're getting, they should check his record:

<http://dneiwert.blogspot.com/2007/11/ron-pauls-record-in-congress.html>

You may find he's just what you're looking for. Or not.

---=_linux47758c52--Bill,

The libertarian movement is such a mixed bag. Some of it is basic americanism and some of it is pure lunacy.

RP will not win, but he will make the movement way more visible.

The way the Dems and Repubs are going, a libertarian may be quite electable in the near future.
