aring? You think it might be that VCA "splat" from certain types of compressors (SSL's are great for this) flattening out the body tone quite a bit? If that's it - or part of it - dbx Comps are good at this, too... even the cheapies.

I assume you've tried all the usual stuff like trying different mic positions, or even different mics & pres?

Dunno... just having my morning coffee & throwing stuff out there.
