yeah, and I'd play bass and sing backup!

Folks around here with long memories might remember that I tend to the dirt cheap end of things. I now live by Craigslist. e rabbi breaks into a smile, explaining that he has two male parrots which he has trained to pray and who've become very observant, spending much of the day davening (praying) in their cage.

He's confident that if the woman brings her two parrots over to his house, his two parrots will exert such a positive influence that her birds will turn into model parrots.

The next day the woman drives over to the rabbi's house and brings her two parrots into his home. As she looks around, she notices a large cage with two parrots, each wearing a little kippah (skull cap) and tiny tallis (prayer shawl) and each holding a miniature prayer book while they rock back and forth in prayer.

Sure enough, as soon as she places her parrots in the cage, they shout out to their male counterparts: "Hi! We're hookers. Want to have some fun?"

One of the rabbi's parrots immediately turns to the other and squawks:

"Moishe, put the f...kin' book down. Our prayers have been answered!"i can't see it coming out until leopard hits the streets; any earlier would seem pointless.
