Ordered a Project Card & an A16Ultra.

Hopefully will have a report for y'all by the weekend (I assume they'll get here & I'll have time to do all the install & tweak routines by then), and unlike DeeJ - whose reports have been known to consist of: FRIDAY: "WOW THIS THING IS FUCKING GREAT!" followed by: SUNDAY: "OK, IT SUCKS, I SHITCANNED IT!", my assessments will be a little more cautious. =20

When Abramoff got busted they all got in line and gave money back, but yet they pointed at the Republicans and screamed "Scandal". So typical! "Look at them, they're dirtier than us". When it comes to our interest, both parties are the same. The truth is they are both a bunch of dirty greasy slimy rats. They are eating our lunch, they sell us out by the second.

People we need more than a two party system. We need to take back our government. We need a government for the people and by the people. We do need change, but the answer is not the Democrats! We need to get rid of all the fat bloated lying lawyer career politicians! WE need to get rid of ALL the lobby groups. WE need a new justice system. We need a new tax system, We need a complete over haul of the government, it is way too corrupt! Easy to do? NO! Necessary to do yes! Will it y mind because I didn't like the sound of Cubase in a natiive mix, then I guess you could sorta thank that. I was sick of having problems and I'm still sick of having problems but the only thing I have shitcanned is the RME HDSP hardware. I only did that after determining that the Pulsar card was more stable and more to my liking on my system. Nothing else. I have been as cautious as possible. That's why I've still got every bit of this stuff here.

I wish you luck with your new Pulsar card.

I just ordered a RME midi system to replace my digiface so it wouldnt be for interface use.

My interest would be if it is worth it for the plug ins, and 14 sharcs is tempting. I have 2 powercores and a UAD-1 working together now. I dont need more of the same.

2. The democratic leadership will need to actually be expected to show some leadership instead of just carping about how they don't like what the republicans are doing. They will be held accountable finally, just as the republicans have been.

3. Since the republicans have rebuilt the economy that Clinton destroyed, and it usually takes the democrats at least 4 years to wreck a good economy, the border control issue is going to be their biggest domestic challenge. They are going to have to carry the ball on this and if it is not effective, the responsibility will fall in their lap.

Having this party in charge of the House intelligence committee (again) is a scary thought. Alcee Hastings may be heading the House Intelligence Committee Thats not really fair or insightful Deej. You need to factor in the fact that Clinton balanced the budget and Bush spends your great grandchildren money every day.

Somethin to think about.Just know this, John. The second you start going off negative around here about any electee or electee's appointees, don't expect a complaint to get any airtime before you get both barrels point blank and a big 'shup' -- until Nov 2008 anyway.

too bad they stopped development on it .I wanted the digi card for it but

http://www.fairlightau.com/default_content.html

This is a single PCIe card (sells for about $5k AUS):

- 230 channels all the time
- 8 bands of EQ (72bit) on each
- 3 stage dynamics on each
- up to 72 user definable busses, mono to 7.1
- up to 220 physical I/O's per card
- HD video at the same time
- VST and Rewire support (run from host cpu) - run over 64 bridge channels from host apps into the CC-1 engine/mixer
- the possibility (depending on 3rd party implementation) for VST plugins to run locally on the card
- very very low latency (0.1-0.5ms with full processing)
- scalable on massive proportions
- combines floating point and fixed point depending on what provides the best audio quality (16-bit float metering to save processing, 72 bit EQ where it counts the most, 36-bit float mixing, etc)
- MADI I/O

- Direct controller support for Dream II systems
- reported to have more DSP power than 8 PTHD Accel cards

The software app to edit and mix with is quite spartan, but I'm hoping Steinberg will get on board and develop direct support (the card can be used by most any media app as a processing resource if developed to do so). Not holding my breath, but hoping at least. This card is aimed directly at PTHD post installs, and could kill it if they get serious 3rd party support. Even without it, just running all audio/video off of the card would free up tons of processing for the host cpu for Rewire apps, VST plugins, VSTi's, etc.

It isn't yet clear if you can run it without the SX20 I/O sync box (e.g. with any MADI to other I/O box - I've emailed them to find out). The base system includes the Satellite AV controller, CC-1 card and SX20 I/O box - $20k total. I just want the card and an RME MADI unit....

It ain't cheap, but it's a serious boatload of dsp power.

Regards,
DedricYou sound a bit grumpy, DeeJ. Interesting version of events and harsh conjecture. When does that benefit of the doubt actually kick in?

 What gives..??

And, he current administraion has not had aplan for Iraq as well. I for one

The democrats have taken control of the house (at least right now) with no agenda whatsoever.

They actually don't have a mandate from the voters to do ANYTHING. They managed to manipulate the voters with a constant drumbeat of hatred against Bush and turned that into a win. And now they think don't have to do ANYTHING. They didn't promise to do anything, they offered no solutions, no plans, nothing.. just used hatred for bush to get back into power.

I find that more than a little scary..but I sure applaud the democrats for pulling it off.

Reality is that these conservative Democrats owe the liberal leadership already. Pelosi orchestrated this and these freshman congressfolk are in the bag....mere window dressing to put a moderate face on. Unless they tow the liberal line, they will get nowhere as career politicians and will not be supported next election by the Dem power structure so the real winners were the manipulative leftist power structure. It's diabolically clever. They make guys like Carl Rove seem like rank amateurs when they put their minds to it.

While I've heard good arguments on the pros and cons of dedicated dsp systems vs. the impending power surge of native systems (e.g. quad cores out by the end of the year, octo cores next year), this seems like a system that could easily grow and adapt with host apps. The gains of a dual or quad octo core would just go to host-based plugins and apps, with the card handling all of audio/video streaming and mixing, and still far exceeding what most music production facilities should ever need for many years to come (film mixes for sure could push 200 tracks - hence the market for a network of these).

I like the idea of getting all of this (audio, mixing, HD/SD video streaming and I/O) in a stable single card system, but with the capa

Someone basically tried to slander me today, accusing me of threatening them when all I did was tell them a truth they didn't happen to want to hear. I'm probably going be meeting with them tomorrow and if I don't get an apology and I find out that they've been spreading this stuff around, I'm going to drag their ass into court. And to their "tax everything that moves & when it stops moving tax it's offspring" economic strategy... thanks, LaMont - you make me want to go back to earning no more than $10k a year again just so I can have all the social welfare advantages that I'll now start paying even more for, starting - oh, probably tomorrow.

Well, in all fairness to the Dems, they DO have a mandate... a mandate for "change", even if that change isn't very well-defined at all. So we sell all our stocks & mutual funds, stuff our money in a mattress somewhere & watch the economy plunge into the shitter, and wait a few years 'til the Republicans get back in power on the next cycle of "change", and then maybe we can start all over again.

NeilThe most basic system with I/O and Satellite controller is about 18,500USD.

A card only option is not under consideration at this time.

Genel just need to chill out. I'm usually pretty slow to anger. Once I'm there, I'm also pretty slow to chill. I could use some improvement in that department. Being pissed off uses lots of energy that could be better directed.

We'll see what kind of attitude a new morning brings about.

Not easy, not full of magic presets but open for creative mind.
Version 3 improved Paris very much. To say about reverbs, I use two Room Verbs for true stereo, each one for each channel full left and right panorama (in and out) on bus and I have wonderful room, absolutely true stereo. Result is different like one Room Verb in stereo mode. I like Paris compressor too.
Martin, my agree...

Z, least expensive way I know of to get a great reverb plugin like what you're talking about is to buy a Lexicon Alpha (about $125 USD), don't load the drivers, but do install the CubaseLE software that comes with it, then look in the plugins folder & you'll find a .dll for Lexicon Pantheon reverb. Move that file into whatever folder you have your other VST plugins located, de-install the CubaseLE software & now you've got a KILLER reverb with nice rooms & halls, plus an assortment of other things, all with very smooth tails, for a buck-and-a-quarter.

Haven't yet figured out what to do with the Alpha unit itself, except perhaps use it as a doorstop. :)

NeilHI Neil,

YYou would have to use the Multifaces internal routing to send the ADAT from the Pulsars to the Analog I/O of the Multiface.

(859) 635-5762I don't think Fairlight have "ever" fitted into the mainstream. I was working in a studio in Manila, Phillipines, with the Fairlight CMI (Computer Musical Instrument) in the late 1980's -was nothing like it at that time. These folks think outside the square, CMI was way ahead of it's time. Prices are not too high compare to PTHD, which I think they are aiming against. It would be interesting to see how this goes in the market place.

I went to the website, but did not notice anything.

Tyronel don't think presidents can wreck economies. A Fed chairman can, but I don't think a president can. And say what you will about bubba, but at the end of his reign of terror we had a budget surplus and a much smaller trade deficit.

Now then, in the eighties the Japanese equivalent of the fed was terrified of unemployment so it made credit absurdly easy to get. Eventually, if enough cheap money is sloshing around it will smash up against something that is truly finite like, oh, say, land. So small chunks of downtown Tokyo were worth more than Delaware. Then, for various reasons interest rates had to go up and there was a massive bloodletting in the real estate markets. Sound familiar? Unky Greenspan did it, under the watch of both parties.

Like nearly all threads in any forum, this one deviated slightly.

Just offering you an idea for a type of reverb that will give you

EXACTLY what you described. Buy the Behringer if you wanna try it...

....and an asbestos case to rack it in.

Neill think that's a good assessment Thad - I agree with you. We are much more directly impacted and influenced by the market/economy than political leadership. After all, money pays the bills, not political platforms (in overly simplistic terms at least).

ourselves in the position that we need a constant flow of mideast oil to keep our economy going. Very few Americans understand the danger of working under the threat of petrodollar conversion. (<http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Petrodollar>).

our policies is unconscionable. This is the hidden economy of the Bush years. Funny but it has been very good for The Carlyle Group and Halliburton.

in the United States, mostly in government bonds. China is effectively taking most of its excess national savings and lending it to the United States. The Japanese, who despite their creaking economy remain flush with savings, bought a quarter trillion dollars of American debt last year, even though the interest is lousy and the assets themselves are losing value. More than any other nation in history, the United States depends, economically, on

I agree. A president with some foresight would have recognized this back when we had the time to do something about it, especially upon having had ward publicly declared on this country by Al Qaeda. So what are we going to do? Are the Democrats going to solve this? In order to do so, we need to become energy independent as in..yesterday. Now how to go about that when all domestic energy options other than drilling for oil in old, depleted oil and gas reservoirs here are off the table whereas solutions that are proven could bring this about within the next 5 years are off the table?

I'm all for clean energy. enough clean energy to sustain t\our economy is 15 years away, at least. We don't have 15 years...especially with a party in power that is willing to negotiate with terrorists, which to them is a sign of weakness. They will be encouraged by this.

This is true. Bush is responsible for many things. What you are missing is, that there are two parties running our government, not just Bush! The two parties are both bad! We have things like this because of both parties. You are falling right in to what they want, what they create and perpetuate, the finger pointing. They are both corrupt, they both made back room dirty deals and sold US out! Both Parties are responsible for where are country is. The day the people of this country stop the blame game and realize the truth and fire all of these career politician rat bastards, the better off this country will be.

The 527s and the lobby groups have to go first. The electoral college is second. We need to count the exact vote of the people some how, and I don't care if it takes a month.

The system is broken, and patching it with the same kind of people (Democrats) is not going to fix it. We need real change, and that can only be done by WE THE PEOPLE!!! "no" <no@no.com> wrote in message news:45536434$1@linux...

yep.I've spent the last few years working in one of the most successful money managing organizations in history, so I follow markets (willingly or not) on a daily basis. The petrodollar thing is just nonsense. The rest of what you say, about foreigners holding massive amounts of US debt, is true. I don't necessarily think it's all that much worse to have Japanese banks hold that debt instead of US banks, and those banks are so internationalized it might not make any difference. The real problem, though, is that we have that massive debt in the first place, no matter who holds it. And that debt is just our governmental debt, no the personal debt and interest only loans that have been written. But if tomorrow the Euro is used fo ar.

Now, some of your repeated Democrat bashing may well be deserved, but it sounds like rehashed propaganda because there is almost nothing positive in what you say about the Democrats, almost nothing negative about the Republicans, and especially because the same talking points keep coming up.

-Hiding behind "Bush Bashing" and "Bush Hating" Bush-as-victim accusations as if there are no reasonable areas to disagree with the policies and performance of the current government, (which by the way includes three branches, not just the executive). This is a very slanted interpretation of events and of the actions of the electorate in this election.

-Meanwhile bashing Clinton, blaming Clinton and Clinton hate in ironic amounts. While ignoring all Republican components to government during his 8 years in office, and ignoring all that came before and since. This is also a very slanted interpretation of current events.

-Projecting every mistake and misstep of the Republicans onto the Democrats. As if the Republicans can do no wrong and Democrats can do no right.

-For that matter, making this about the political parties instead of the individuals involved.

Personally, I think there are competent/trustworthy and incompetent/corrupt people in both parties. And unethical people running the propaganda machines whose talking points you seem to be repeating.

It might help to turn off the TV and radio for a couple of months (at least the one-winged variety), write a long letter to your congressfolk about your concerns, and see if you can truly give the next congress the benefit of the doubt while they get to work. There's a lot that needs to be done.

Energy policy needs immediate attention. And some amount of time for better policies to help, as you say.

We also need leadership that won't let the wacky beliefs of a few terrorists directly control their course of action (or inaction).

Leiberman was a incumbent, the Democratic party allowed and supported people running against him.

Hebrewman was looking out for Israel by supporting the Iraq war. He doesn't want it spilling over in to Israel. Insurgents (terrorists) with nothing to do pouring in to israel wouldn't be good for Israel.

The truth is, the US needs to stop supporting Israel. They have the bomb, and they have god on their side, they don't need US. This would clear up a lot of our middle east problems.

That's pure bullshit! With the tax cuts, if you have children you are getting a lot more money back than you did in the former administration. Most Americans got more money back because of the tax cuts, including you LaMont! The rich will always be able to get out of paying a lot of taxes by percentage. Both parties have seen to that. Quit kidding your self. Your stuck in the blame game, you need to see the truth. WE have the best government MONEY CAN BUY!

There should be no income taxes! There is no true representation. It was a war time thing that the politicians wouldn't let go of once the greedy bastards got their hands on the money. Let stop paying for IRS agents!!!!

If there is an income tax really needed, it should be a strait fair flat tax. What is currently considered poverty levels should be raised to realistic levels. People that are at a poverty level should not have to pay any taxes.

"Im with the Bush-Cheney team, and I'm here to stop the count."

Those were the words John Bolton yelled as he burst into a Tallahassee library on Saturday, Dec. 9, 2000, where local election workers were recounting ballots cast in Florida's disputed presidential race between George W. Bush and Al Gore.

---=_linux45538841--I'm referring to any US leader who bases their policy on pleasing or not pleasing terrorists.

IOW, anyone who fails to take worthwhile action because of a perception that it will make them "seem weak" to someone else, is not smart enough to be running foreign policy.

In individual cases it may or may not make sense to employ diplomacy and negotiation. That judgment cannot be wisely made by anyone who lets themselves be controlled by knee-jerk thinking.

Cheers,
-Jamie
