>I commented on this elsewhere. I think this is a user friendliness test (for a certain kind of user), not a sonics test. I think the DAW test was excellent at testing what it was supposed to test, which was if digital summing busses sound very different. It wasn't designed to test which was the most fun/easiest to use/most like a console/prettiest/best value/most expandable or anything else. For what it did it was great, the other questions should be answered with other, appropriate tests. In my never-at-all-humble opinion of course ;-)
