Gene,

Thanks for your input. My mastering jobs are definitely on the low end scale. If I didn't do it, they'd run disks with no attention to mastering at all. The higher end clients are all going to a select few mastering houses here in BeanTown.=20

I am familiar with the SSL 2 bus comp sound. How does the Neve compare to that would you say? I might have to check out the Neve and Precision and do an A-B test on different style mixes. I also like to run the 2-bus into my Neve pres for 'that sound' .

To refresh your memory, the Demeter is fairly transparent for a tube box = but doesn't have the speed to really control wild dynamics. It does = help=20

glue things together though especially on guitar groups or vocal groups.

As always thanks for the tips!

Yeoww! That thing was loud, and clean too. Good tone.

Most players don't know that a 1x12 cuts through a lot better than a 4x12, all else being equal. If you just want a clear, powerful lead tone, a single speaker just rules. If you want a huge sound, and can live with a bit less clarity, then a 4x12 is the ticket.

chrisl@adkproaudio.com would pay (nearly) any amount of money for the following capabilities:

1. Delay compensation on inserts and auxes.
2. Ability to use VSTs on aux busses.

This would keep me using Paris as my primary app for a LONG time.

ring his heart out to the passenger about how his life had taken a downward turn and how he had fallen on hard times. It wasn't long before the drunk had tears streaming down his face. The Aikido man, somewhat ashamed thought to himself 'That's Aikido!'. He realised in that instant that the passenger with a comforting arm around the sobbing drunk was demonstrating Aikido, and all martial art, in it highest form.

>chrisl@adkproaudio.comThe Dems are completely screwed because they _at least_ rolled over to a one.
On the whole program, from start to finish. People forget Patriot I was Clinton legislation in reaction to Oklahoma City, Patriot II just took another nibble at what (little) was left of the constitution.

Unlike most people, I was a loud critic of this war _before_ it started. This was because I know what the US has done previously in Southeast Asia, Central America, and so on. We've invaded nearly every country south of the Mexican border at least twice, some more. The Dominican Republic had Marines there five time in the twentieth century, a country that couldn't defeat the Albany PD on a good day. Every time we've invaded another country it was to save it from a) itself or b) the evil empire. After reading in the 1980's about the terrifying strategic threats posed by Guatemala, Grenada, Nicaragua, and Panama I decided I'd be a bit skeptical henceforth.

But I remember seeing two of the most prominent Dems, Joe Lieberman and Hillary Clinton, on TV in the run up the war. Both were demanding to know why Bush hadn't invaded Iraq already. Why we weren't using bigger bombs on more people far faster etc. and so forth. And I said to myself, 'Well, that's the end of the Democratic party.' And it's hard to feel terribly nostalgic for it.

And, as you say DeeJ, now all effort is being made to blame the CIA because if we don't blame them we might actually blame the cringing sycophants we elected to represent We the People in Congress Assembled. Ironically it was the CIA that was most cautious about the Iraq war. The CIA may be a bunch of loathesome spooks who the US would assassinate if they did to us what they do to other countries in our name, but that doesn't make them wrong or stupid.

But I always say, think of two things about the current various wars on terror. Who at the very least paid for the training and equipping of Osama and his boys? During the brutal ten year Iran-Iraq war, did the US support one side with money or military equipment, and if so which side?

Both parties should pay for what they've done, neither will,

Hey Deej! I know this is a long shot, but could you post the plans and any info for the DIY guys. Maybe we could find somebody to build them for us.

Our situation is directly related to the fact that our leaders based their decisions on disinformation that was a result of the policies of the Clinton administration. I'm not pointing the finger backwards for any other reason than I feel it is important to keep this in mind lest we elect the same misguided souls with the same naive and misguided foreign policy ideas to office once again and end up in an even bigger mess.....and yes.....it could be much bigger if the liberals take control of the national legislature.....much less, god forbid, having another Clinton in the white House.

It's of limited usefulness to hone in on the last administration as if that's the entire problem, surely you would have to take into account decisions made before then and since then.

So while I agree with your point to an extent, it's insufficient to inoculate the current admin from its own significant problems.

Bill and George aren't running again so we don't have to argue that one.
I am not writing off either major party or a third party, but we need a change on many levels.

Cheers

I had great success today with one EDS card, trying it in one PCI slot at a time, all four PCI slots, no problems. I'll throw all four in there and see what happens. I'll check the msinfo thingie before I boot up Paris. It will tell me if IRQs are shared, right?

I had a Mesa MKII-C with a seperate vented box with an EVM12-L.

I used to hang out with my friend's blues band in San Diego and play sometimes, and that amp would make every note as clear in the back of the room as on stage. Just amazing. Yes, it's a good amp, but it's also the clarity of the single speaker.

I have one of Mark Sampson's new Star amps, and when I got it, he and I were yakking for a while, and he absolutely agrees that a single speaker is the key to absolute clarity and being clearly heard in the back of the room.

Of course, I still love the 4x12's too... heh heh

Thank God for a patient wife!

Even NoLimit? No real latency?

Sorry I didn't mention that before. Or alternately you could point a video cam at it.

Tom, do you find that the Paris EQ is a little, er... tubby sounding in =

Gene and all others with comments,

Is the Neve 33609 even worth the bother?

I want to use the $50 coupon on a plug. I'm strongly considering the = Precision Multiband.

If it sounds as good as it looks and functions as simply as it appears =
I think it could make a difference in my lower end mastering projects (the only ones I do). =

Now I'm using Paris EQ,=20

NoLimit, Paris Comp, but no real pristine compression. The Waves = multiband is average at best=20 to my ear. That's all I've got around here in higher end software. = I've delved into the Waves Ren Comp=20 a few times too. It's okay. The Sakis method is too involved for my = limited mastering hours. I typically have to get a CD done in less than four hours to make it worth the = client's/my while.

For $200 or less is there a better choice for an easy to use multiband =

comp? Otherwise I might spring for the=20

1073 but I have two Neve pres here in hardware form that I track with = alot.

Is the UAD 140 way better than the SIR plates? If not I'll pass on = that too.

I'm thinking the Cambridge EQ (just got that and like it) with the = Precision Multiband Comp would be a=20 fine addition to a sweeter sounding master and even individual tracks =

here and there. =20

All opinions welcome!

-----=_NextPart_000_0042_01C6DC26.7F76D500--It essentially splits the signal into two paths.. one for the detector and one that is the audio throughput. By NOT delaying the detector and delaying the audio by, let's say, 1 mS the detector actually gets a 1 mS 'lookahead' time to better process the signal/transients.
 The price is that now your audio will be 1 mS later than it was. This can be a real bite in the rear on multimic'd stuff like drum kits unless you intentionally delay the other tracks by the same amount (and the next step is to move them all back/to the left 1mS in the editor).

 >here's how I understand it...

a. EDS plugs have a 1 to 2 sample latency when lookahead is set to zero.

b. unfortunately there is a bug in nolimit that causes unpredictable results when 0 lookahead is used.

c. Lookahead on any EDS plug is essentially a delay line, and causes latency exactly equal (well not exactly, move on to d for more info) to the lookahead value. If you use a lookahead of 1 ms it will cause a latency of (what should be) 44 samples.

d. The UI control code in paris is geeked and the math is hardwired to a 48K sample rate instead of 44.1. This means that any math calculations based on UI controls are off. A lookahead of 1ms in a project based on 44.1 should cause a latency of 44 samples, but causes a latency of 48.

e. The audio from the lookahead delay line feeds the control channel for a gate/compressor/limiter.

the plug is looking out into the delayed signal (a leetle bit further ahead), but acting on the non-delayed signal, giving it the appearance of "knowing" what's going to happen in terms of transients, but at the cost of latency.

things, usually....

I just think people ought to have to take responsibility for their own actions.

And I don't recall Slick Willy invading Iraq.

Guess I'm just ignernt.

To be honest, EMU discontinuing Paris was one of the best things that ever happened to me. Cheap parts, ya know....

By "pause key", you mean the key that says "pause" & "break"?

I know I seem ignernt. I'm sorry.

Having lived in just about every climate, I'm not too picky, though I do like the ocean. Something tells me I'd like Australia. Most of the Aussies I've met in my lifetime, I've become friends with, though I've never mated with any of the males.

Aaron,
Tubby big time in the low end. I think I'm going to like the Cambridge possibly in conjunction with the Neve 33609.
The Cambridge seems to have an even nicer top end than=20
Paris. More transparent but still retains character to my ear. =20
I think the low end will be better in a fine tuning way than the=20
Paris eq also.

It's the Neve comp that I know nothing about.

Tom, do you find that the Paris EQ is a little, er... tubby sounding = in mastering?

Gene and all others with comments,

Is the Neve 33609 even worth the bother?

I want to use the $50 coupon on a plug. I'm strongly considering = the Precision Multiband.
If it sounds as good as it looks and functions as simply as it = appears I think it could make a difference in my lower end mastering projects (the only ones I = do). Now I'm using Paris EQ,=20

NoLimit, Paris Comp, but no real pristine compression. The Waves = multiband is average at best=20 to my ear. That's all I've got around here in higher end software. = I've delved into the Waves Ren Comp=20 a few times too. It's okay. The Sakis method is too involved for = my limited mastering hours. I typically have to get a CD done in less than four hours to make it worth the = client's/my while.

For $200 or less is there a better choice for an easy to use = multiband comp? Otherwise I might spring for the=20 1073 but I have two Neve pres here in hardware form that I track = with alot.

Is the UAD 140 way better than the SIR plates? If not I'll pass on = that too.

I'm thinking the Cambridge EQ (just got that and like it) with the = Precision Multiband Comp would be a=20 fine addition to a sweeter sounding master and even individual = tracks here and there. =20

All opinions welcome!

Not DJ but...

I had it for a few hours before my temp license timed out = prematurely. Sounds nice and fairly close to the real thing. I did a short comparison = to my Portico5043.

The UAD has a similar flavor and controls the dynamics in a very = similar way, but it is missing the creamy sound of the hardware - And I = hate people that describe hardware as creamy :=AC)=20

Since the plug requires an entire card or it must be rendered, I = don't think
I will get it. I might as well render the real thing.
