your boot.ini file rather than disabling hyperthreading.

The boot.ini file lives at c:\boot.ini. You may have to enable "show hidden files and folder" and/or turn off "hide protected operating system files" to see it by going to "tools - folderoptions - view" and making the changes.

Here's the contents of my boot.ini for reference:

```
[boot loader]
timeout=30
default=multi(0)disk(0)rdisk(0)partition(2)\WINDOWS [operating systems]
multi(0)disk(0)rdisk(0)partition(2)\WINDOWS="Microsoft Windows XP Professional"
/fastdetect /NoExecute=OptIn /INTAFFINITY
C:\ = "Microsoft Windows"

Good luck!

We always assume everything is ok until something goes wrong. It would be good to have clients sign a form to acknowledge that they are ultimately responsible for backing up data and we can not be held liable in the event of catastrophe.

As for myself, I am planning on renting my space to a reputable band/producer from this area. They will be using the studio and some equipment for a set period of time and I just wanted to get some sort of written agreement stating the expectations of both parties. It's my first time down this road, I usually only do hourly rates and no one else touches my toys...!!

Much more casual than a contract, and will hold up pretty well in court (though I have never needed to do that, and only once can I remember ever having to bring up a point listed in the letter)...
