the disc indicator on your machine to see when it starts to access the drive heavily. With a low disc cache, it might even choke when it gets to the point of loading the audio into ram.

en massive problems with it as far as streaming audio is concerned. If you are only using it for remote control protocol it should be fine. A better choice (albeit more money) would be either an 02R/96 or a DM1000 and an RME

HDSP9652... totally solid combination there.

Cheers,

David.
