want to go with the song, but it's also a bad thing because in my case, I seem to want to enhance what I've got, rather than making any subtle changes that could present a different, perhaps better, picture.

*Expanded soundstages - There are a number of apps that can/will widen the stereo field... back in the late early 90's I did quite a number of mixes using the Bedini Audio Spatial Environment, and wehn I planned on using it I ALWAYS mixed with it inserted & "on". This was the only way I could mix & ensure that I knew what I was getting - boy, was it easy to "find the pocket" for just about any element in the mix using that box.
Ozone has a stereo spread section, and it's very cool because it's multi-band, but the problem is, Ozone is p

really isn't the place for this discussion.

If you want to email me privately, I will discuss it further, but really, we've covered the subject, don't you think?

DC

PS, holy cow this Marshall JCM2000 sounds cool cranked up!

Unfortunately, you can hear it down at the stop light when I do that... grrrr... Why can't the modelers sound like that?

  For decades it was popular amongst certain types of people to go on Unemployment Insurance at 3/4 of your wage and take the summer off to drink and generally party on the gov't dole. It was a standard joke here until they clamped down on it.

Actually, I think you are way off base here, but I also think it is silly to rate topic-quality, so I do not really care to engage this

I'd be more inclined to steer you towards a Grace set, less of them but better quality per buck, because you already have generic pres in the console.
As to the console, are you routing the mix through it or through paris?

Doesn't Voxengo make a free sample rate convertor?

What would be considered high end sample rate conversion.... hardware? or software?

hmmmm.

JeremyThanks for the comments. I've just added the SPL Gold Mic Pre to the short list. I'm tempted to get the Octopre LE; or the Octopre LE with the SPL as well (not so good for the budget); kust the SPL or possibly the Sytek (alone). The second option would give me 10 pres, with the option of tubes on two of them.

I guess the only worry with not buying an 8 pre unit is tracking drums without decent pres (apart from a mono Focusrite Voice
